Evangelist Robert Farham,
Baxter Springs, Kan.

My dear Robert,

Some time ago you spoke to me about the idea of a publicity agent and as, through a change in the management of this newspaper I shall be at liberty in a few weeks, I am writing to learn if you are in any such notion now.

I should rather work for such a person as you are than for any one in the world and would make a very reasonable agreement and I believe that such an agreement we could both profit to a reasonable degree.

I realize that you are inclined to go out on the promise but I also believe that you realize that the Lord helps the man who helps himself. Evangelism is just what your father called it, the biggest business in the world and it should have business principles applied to it.

I could be useful to you in many ways and lift a lot of the load of details off from you. I should like to travel with you for I know that the experience I have had in many lines would be of great benefit to you.

Think it over and, if you are interested, write me and arrange for a conference here or some where else. We might do a great work by combining our talents.

Kindest regards to Mrs. Robert and the entire family.

Fraternally yours,

Frank Hill
