The second campus revival of the school year was held February 29, March 1, 2, and 3. Classes were dismissed on Friday, March 1, to allow students to attend two daytime services, and attendance was taken on that day. In an effort to ascertain campus reaction to the meetings, the following questions were asked of students: WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT THE DISMISSAL OF CLASSES FOR THE CAMPUS REVIVAL?

It gives a little extra time to prepare for the meetings. When the services are held only in the evening, there’s no time to study.

Personally, I thought it was okay. The administration had planned it in the schedule since the first of the year, and I saw nothing wrong with it.

I thought it was great. It gave me a rest from nase class assignments.

I was in favor of it. The idea behind it was to make it a day of prayer. It’s a good idea for the whole campus to set aside a day to pray in unity.

It was better to dismiss classes one day than to have it drag on through the week.

For me, it was a good idea. For others, it was just a waste of time. But in the end, I think the good that the services accomplished justified the dismissal of classes.

WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT REQUIRED ATTENDANCE?

I think it was great. I know I needed to go, but if they hadn’t made me I certainly wouldn’t have gone. I’m glad they required attendance.

I would have gone anyway, just the thought of being made to go makes me want to rebel and run the other direction.

I think it might have been a good idea for one of the services on Friday, but for the morning and afternoon both! I thought it was too much.

Think what the word revival means. Required attendance makes it seem like some kind of drudgery. They might as well change the name from revival to chapel.

I think that’s the only way the students would have attended.

Since the administration dismissed classes, I think they were entirely in their rights to require attendance.

I felt they sort of bargained by dismissing classes if students would agree to be spiritual for a weekend.

DO YOU THINK WE SHOULD HAVE MORE CAMPUS REVIVALS OF THIS SORT?

Yes, because the campus needs to be revived. There is no such thing as a ‘Christian University.’ It’s an individual thing. The students need to have something they can see, something they can become. The campus revival is a necessity.

Once a semester is enough. I’d never felt the spirit of revival until this one. If the scholar who spoke in the middle of the revival had been here at any other time, it

Here on Our Island .

If a stranger were to visit ORU for one day, and during the course of his stay be asked to make a point to ferret out the main topics of conversation, he would probably tune in on such hot-topic issues as controversy over short-sleeves in the cafeteria, whether or not chapel should be called chapel, and the dating habits of the ORU male. These pertinent issues, on which we as students can seemingly never make much headway, and on which hot air, are indicative of the level of social interest to which ORU-lans have thus far evolved.

So we find ourselves carried along in our daily activities, and forget that the outside world has spread throughout the campus and fosters without opposition in the barren domain of the ORU mind. It is time for each of us to awaken from our slothful slumber, attempt to remove our follow cosoles, and begin to make at least a feasible attempt to relate to our environment. It falls to us as seekers after knowledge and truth to apply what we have learned in dealing with the fellow man beyond the hallowed halls of ORU.

We must now take a genuine interest in the social and political climate of our world. We must make it a business to remain informed, to develop opinions, and to share them with each other. Each of us must break out of our own little nucleus of interest and allow ourselves to be touched by the rest of humanity.

Our world is bounded only by infinity, not just Lewis and 81st. We must now allow the narrow limits of our own little universe to be crossed, and explore those boundaries that we might make a worthwhile impression upon this, our universe.—R. Williams would have been good to hear his lectures.

Revival Poll

Nor, not just another sort of thing, I didn’t like the way they crammed it into such a short period, and then the way they followed it with an intellectual speaker and billing his series of messages as a continuous revival!

In the first place, I went into the revival very hefty of what would happen because this campus is not really revival hardened. I think the real success was in the prayer meetings, individual, one-on-one, and Rev. Tyson’s devotions in the dorms. I think having revivals important are but these other meeting places are also important to maintain. I don’t mean to discredit this revival, I don’t think it would have succeeded as it did without this type of preparation.

I believe an all-campus REVIVAL is beneficial to YOU PERSONALLY.

The student’s committeed service was especially beneficial to me more than any other service. I appreciated and loved the students on this campus like I had never done before.

I had been struggling with a critical and cynical attitude. God gave me a loving and forgiving spirit.

It helped me to grow spiritually. I know that’s a little vague, but one can’t be very specific when it comes to a personal social and but for me it is an individual as well.

I think it helped almost everyone who went and actively participated.

It would have benefited me if I’d go.

In all the three years I’ve been here, I hadn’t felt the Holy Spirit moving on strongly as it did in this last revival.

Why Are You Here?

Why are you really here? What is really compelling your attendance at ORU?

Is it the so-called glamour of being away from the familiar Old Roberts University, the university where we have the talent in electronic media and the desire to be academic and living fabricly? Or are you dodging the draft? Are you looking for a haven? Did your parents bribe you with something? Are you obsessed with your department? Is ORU your favorite travel agency? Are you here only because you get a full athletic scholarship? Couldn’t you cope with a worldly school?

If you can answer affirmatively any one of the above questions, perhaps a re-examination of your motives and basic motivation for being here is in order.

Think of this: What I am to be, I am now becoming. Each day a day down payment on eternity. What are you becoming? What kind of down payments are you making?

The President’s Corner

Time for True Test

by Eric Fiers

Building a curriculum, establishing a student government, developing into professionals, and all the other aspects of building an entirely new university have until now occupied all our time and energy. So far, ORU has been judged by these efforts.

Our current reputation rests on the successes achieved in formulating and using the newest methods and facilities.

However, beginning with the next two years, a different criterion will be used to judge ORU—the graduating students. Our school will be rated by the quality of its product: the students—us.

When we graduate, our lives will not terminate and begin again. The only tools we can use to shape tomorrow will be the interests and abilities of today. We need to turn our attention from ourselves, extend our current interests to the corresponding areas in the world today.

As The Walrus said, “The time has come to speak of many things. Instead of concentrating on the petty issues of our small world, we need to expand our interests and, in doing so, we will not be completely out of step when we leave the world of ORU.”

Fuzzy Wuzzy

Shaving Less and Enjoying It More?

Fuzzy Wuzzy was a bear.
Fuzzy Wuzzy had no hair.
Fuzzy Wuzzy wasn't fuzzy. What a hair.

If Fuzzy Wuzzy were among the male population of ORU, the answer to that question could be a resounding YES! For of late there have been a few brave souls who have produced varying degrees of hairy outgrowths, often known as mustaches and sideburns.

In a recent survey conducted among ORU students, mustaches were rated all the way from kissable to gross. Take a look in the mirror—Is your mustache precious, cute, daring, sexy, ragged, distinguished, tough, cummy, scraggly, punky, dirty, or just plain ridiculous?

One psychology major describes the growing of a mustache as a forced conformity to one's peer group, while another student states that his mustache aids in keeping the smell of the cafeteria food out of his nose.

Other comments made in referring to mustaches and sideburns include:

I love them.
I hate them.
If my boyfriend grew a mustache, I'd shoot him.
Sideburns keep my ears warm.

They're only a symbol.

Guess who...flourishing mustaches and sideburns adorn unidentified male students.

Baptists to Present Folk Music Fest

On Friday, March 22, at 7:00 p.m. the Chapel Choir of Immanuel Baptist Church, 1915 East Third Street, will present a city-wide Folk Song Festival and production of "Good News," a new religious folk-musical.

The first half of the program will consist of folk singers and folk groups—junior high through college age. If you are interested in performing on the program, you may call the Music Office at Immanuel (LU 7-8433) for more information. All talent will audition before a screening committee and only the best talent will be selected.

In addition to the informal folk singing, the Chapel Choir will present "Good News." This new religious folk-musical, written and staged某种程度地like a Broadway musical, is the story of Christian youth being challenged by a non-Christian. The contemporary theme of love, death, boss nova, and "folk" style music seeks to capture the attention of the audience and present the Gospel of Christ to modern-day hearers. "Good News" will be presented under the direction of Mr. Phillip R. Lambert, Minister of Music. All folk singers and "listeners" are urged to attend.

Easter Service

At 7 p.m., March 31, the Abundant Life Chapel will present in the Timbo-Barton Auditorium its annual Easter Special. Being presented on Passion Sunday, the service will feature in dramatic sight and sound the major events of Christ's life leading to his death. Communion will be the major part of the service, as each event in the tragic death of Christ is reenacted. Special sound effects and lighting, a host of musical groups, and a challenging message will contribute to make this a tremendous evening.

Weaver Wins Title

Josie Weaver, a freshman at Oral Roberts University, was recently crowned queen of the Miss Showa-Rama Pageant, which was held at Kansas City, Missouri. The pageant concluded a convention held for exhibitors and producers in the movie industry.

Josie Weaver entered the contest by submitting her photograph to the judging committee and she was chosen as one of the six finalists from a group of over 350 girls.

The six finalists competed in a talent division, a swimsuit division, and a personal interview. In the Swim Suit category, Miss Weaver impressed personality and poise.

Asked how she felt about her new title, Josie remarked, "It's a great honor, but it involves a lot of work, too. The new queen received a formal evening gown, a large silver tray, and a movie contract for a picture to be filmed during the later part of the summer. Also, Josie had the honor of meeting special celebrities including Charlton Heston, Raquel Welch, Shaila Stevens, George Jessel, Gene Kelly, and Don Wilson.

Mumus, Leis, Dress for Luau Day

"Let your hair down" is the command for all the Mumus and Leis Day coming up on March 22. Brightly colored shirts, mumus, leis, and any other clothing resembling Hawaiian dress will be the order for the day.

In the evening, there will be a special luau buffet supper during the regular dinner hours with piped-in Hawaiian music and Hawaiian decor to complete the atmosphere. Luau Day will end with one of the double feature "Hawaii, the State of Paradise"—a color travelogue-like film, and "Journey to the Center of the Earth," a color science-fiction movie starring Pat Boone and Arlene Dahl. Admission will be thirty-five cents.

The purpose of this series of articles is to recognize the students of Oral Roberts University who will graduate this coming May. These students realize the responsibility they have as they face the future, for what they accomplish will reflect the training they received at the university. ORU is proud of its first senior class and anticipates the success of each of its members in whatever field or occupation he or she enters.

Two Future Teachers Profiled As Seniors Near Graduation

by Sandy LeRasle

Lynn Thomas

Senior class in Lynn Thomas from Pleasantville, New Jersey. Lynn last year was a member of yearbook staff and presently serves as the secretary of the senior class.

Before coming to ORU, Lynn attended Bob Jones University for two years. While at Bob Jones, she participated in "child evangelism," a program that seeds groups of young people to poverty-stricken areas. The members of the groups conducted Sunday School and taught the children of the area about the Bible.

In regard to her approaching graduation, Lynn said, "After spending almost seventeen years in school, it's going to seem strange to be out! Lynn is an elementary education major and she will soon begin student teaching in one of Tulsa's elementary schools. She would like to teach the second grade and will probably teach in either Tulsa or Illinois. Lynn is also considering spending a year abroad with a World Action team, but as yet she has not made any definite plans.

About the future, she said, "Even though the future seems uncertain, if one will dedicate everything to the Lord, he will find that things will work out."
Mademoiselle Clement Adds French Flavor to Faculty and Student Life

by Marcia Robinson

Coming to ORU from the small town of Boul-Columbus (the Wood of Doves) in France, Anne Clement is a new addition to the faculty as an instructor in Modern French Literature. She is also enrolled in three undergraduate courses-Educational Psychology, Augustine, Period English, and Christian Ministry.

Anne lives in the suburbs of Paris with her father, Rev. Bernard Clement, and her three brothers-Pierre, 20; Yves, 17; and Bernard Jr., 16. She received her degree from Faculte des Lettres Sciences humaines de Naterre Academy de Paris.

In France, students attend school for twelve years, as do U.S. students, before entering college, but college only includes three years of study. All high school subjects must be taken without selection. Anne noted that at the end of their high school education, the French students are intellectually exhausted, and it is difficult for them to choose a field of study for college, while American youth seem refreshed and ready for further study.

French college students take only the courses related to their chosen fields of study, and exams are given annually. If a student fails twice for a given year of study, he is expelled. Only 30 to 50 per cent of the students are able to pass their exams.

Anne stated that there is no psychological threat of the draft in France, which hags heavy over each American boy. America doesn't seem to be at war because the way of life has not changed. War should have consequences on the welfare of the average American, the one who is carefree and fun-loving. The American is a great child. Yet that is why the French like Americans, the merry fellows who can get excited easily.

Since coming to ORU, Anne Clement feels that she has learned two main lessons. One is to discipline herself in her prayer life to meet her daily needs. The other is to avoid judging people on the appearance of those around her. French standards vary, too, but it has been harder to control reactions over here. In this way she has learned to overcome an indifference toward fellow students that is prevalent in French colleges.

Phys Ed Offers Archery

by Joel Vescen

Archery, an age-old sport, has been added as a physical education class at Oral Roberts University this semester. Two classes, totaling about thirty students, meet at three and four o'clock every Tuesday and Thursday. The instructor is Miss Joan Carroll, a student in the Graduate School.

The class spent the first few weeks watching instructional films and slides on the bow and arrow, on shooting form, and on point of aim. Then they advanced to practicing basic bow techniques, such as keeping the bow-hand still and learning control.

The class practices on 42-inch straw targets on their range south of the tennis courts. Most of the archers, in the class use bows of from fifteen to twenty-five pounds pull. (The amount of a bow is determined by the amount of force required to pull the bowstring all the way back to the shooting position.)

In tournaments, competition is at various distances. A competitor will shoot a round of six arrows from each distance. A bullseye counts nine points. Each succeeding circle outward counts two points less all the way down to one point for a hit on the outermost ring on the target. The goal of every archer is to get a round of "six gold", which is six bullseyes out of six shots. This is an extremely difficult accomplishment to achieve in actual competition.

If you should be walking in the field south of the tennis courts on a Tuesday or Thursday afternoon, you might be on the lookout for stray arrows.

Pattison Speaks

Dr. George Pattison, associated with Interchurch Team Ministries, spoke in the Seminary Chapel service on March 6. Before being filled with the Holy Spirit six years ago, Dr. Pattison was pastor of St. Andrews Cathedral in Prince Rupert, British Columbia. He received his B.A. from the University of Toronto and his D.D. from Winfield College.

Since joining the Interchurch Team ministries, Dr. Pattison has traveled extensively throughout the U.S. and Europe, holding laymen's conferences, seminars. He has also been in China through the manifestations of the Spirit.

Music Contest

The Tulsa District Music Festival will bring about 1500 junior high and senior high students to Oral Roberts University today and tomorrow for vocal solo and ensemble competition. The students come from schools in Tulsa and surrounding towns.

Approximately 2500 students from the same schools will come to ORU Monday and Tuesday for the instrumental, solo and ensemble competition.

Hodge Reed Conclude Final Year of Play

With the close of the basketball season also comes the sad task of saying farewell to those players who have completed their careers as members of the team. For the Titans, this is an especially difficult task this year. The variant, only two, is not very great, but the qualities of those two makes it a most difficult farewell.

Bobby Hodge and Mel Reed came to the Titans two years ago after outstanding junior college careers. Their incoming became mainstays on the Titan team.

Bobby Hodge has scored 787 points in 20 games for an average of 15.7 point per game. He made 52 per cent of his field goal attempts and 86 per cent of his free throws during the last two years. Those only 5' 8" and normally playing far from the basket on both offense and defense, Bobby grabbed 140 rebounds for the Titans during his two seasons.

In his two seasons, Mel Reed has scored 712 points for an average of 14.2 point per game. Most starting at center during his first season, Mel switched to forward his second season. For the second season, Mel connected on 51 per cent of his shots from the field and grabbed 382 rebounds in his two years.

The man who knows your game as more than anyone, Coach Bill White, will tell you that even through their record is outstanding, their leadership and courage will be the most. As each of these outstanding athletes are awarded prior to the start of the final game, the entire crowd came to their feet and showed their appreciation for their fine play and sportsmanship with a full minute of applause.

Boots to Compete for First Tulsa Soccer Club

The soccer team of ORU tuned up for the first annual Tulsa Soccer Cup Championship play-offs by truncating the Mexican Lions Soccer Club 9-1 here last Saturday in an exhibition game.

The Titans drew first blood by scoring only 10 seconds after the opening whistle and led throughout the rest of the game. The Titans controlled the ball and pounced against the Mexican goal. Scoring for the Titans were Dave Bates, 4; Joel Vansan, 3; and John Wakefield, 2. ORU, with an overhand record of 11-4-3, came in third place in the eastern division of the Oklahoma Soccer League with a 6-3 league record.

On March 16, the ORU soccer team begins a series of games against rounds on its local Tulsa soccer teams. The two teams with this in small points (two points for a win, one for a tie) will then play a final championship game for the Tulsa Soccer Cup.

The schedule for the ORU is as follows: Saturday, March 16, ORU vs. 3a) Tulsa Athletic Club; here; Saturday, March 23, ORU vs. 3b) Tulsa Athletic Club; here; Saturday, March 30, ORU vs. Tulsa University, at TO.

Through the hard work and hard work, the ORU Soccer Team has developed a group of boys into what might literally be the best group of the best teams in the state. Teamwork and great desire for soccer have contributed to their success.
