More lights planned

Safety and beautification for reasons

Let there be light! And there was light! Appropriately $25,000 worth, sprinkled all over the campus by the Turley Electric Company.

The big question is WHY? "The reasons for the new lighting system are for the good of the students," states Robert Eskridge, Vice-President of Business Affairs.

"Probably the most important reason is campus safety and beautification. The campus has always had some lights for its driveways, sidewalks, and gardens, but there is need for more. Most students aren’t on campus in the summer and don’t realize the beauty of some trees come at night to visit, particularly after it gets cool in the evening."

"Secondly, lights are a safety measure. We have had a number of automobile incidents— involving mostly people from town. Lights are an aid for those who are not familiar with our campus, those who drive up over the curbs," continued Mr. Eskridge.

"The third reason is that automobile thefts from student cars have greatly diminished since lighting the parking lots. Last year there was almost a theft a night. There aren’t many places in south Tulsa where you can find 400 automobiles in one place."

"The lights that are being tried for the women’s and men’s dorm are aimed at highlighting the arched windows at the top of Lewis Avenue. The lights aren’t intended to spot-light, but to provide a soft glow. Soft-glow lights will also be placed along Braxton and Shattuck halls to illuminate the sidewalks."

"Some lights going in are called graphic lights. They are literally silver and called such because they are more or less directional as well as a light. These will be used to light the ARC, men’s and women’s high rise, and Reecie gardens. Six different groups of fixtures are planned."

"Stetson University has put in $87,000 worth of lighting, and the main reason was for student protection," continued Eskridge. "We are not the only ones putting in improvements. Our entire lighting plan is a gift of Regent Ernest Simpson, who also sponsored the ORU entrance."

Mr. Eskridge concluded, "At Harvard University, more than $18,000 in property was reported stolen from freshman dormitories during the first two months of the present academic year. So we had many purposes for our lighting, but certainly one is protection of the students, their property, and automobiles."

AAES to occupy

Students to relish seats

Students who sit in the center sections of the auditorium will be rewarded to relish their seats to AAES delegates next Friday.

"When we have attended other universities, we found that their chaperons were similar to ours in that they didn’t have enough seats for the students and delegates either," said Larry Scott, National AAES Convention Chairman. "They gave up their seats in order for the delegates to speak. We, therefore, (the students) really wanted to hear." "Our student body will be asked to do much more. If we’re going to show our welcome and interest for these delegates, we’re going to stand beside their chaperons, but also make an over effort to meet them and find out what it’s all about."

"We’re probably the most curious attraction in evangelical history," Larry stopped and grinned, then added. "They aren’t sure if we have a test in the back yard or not."

With the look of seriousness returning he continued. "But when they get here, they’re going to meet the greatest and most mature student body they ever visited. They’re expecting to see Christ in us!"

Spring gardening project to include 450 new trees

Have you noticed all the trees that are being planted on campus, totaling 450, the trees are gifts from the Cedar Ridge Country Club and Mr. and Mrs. James Butterworth, two ORU ‘partners’ in Michigan.

Through the ministry of President Roberts, Mrs. Butterworth was healed of a shoulder injury on Nov. 5, 1961. Five years later a Norway maple tree which they planted 27 years ago, suddenly produced an amazing crop of 200 flowers—a thing it had not done before or since! Wishing to show their gratitude, the Butterworth’s wrote to Robert Eskridge, vice president of Business Affairs: "We have raised these trees from seed in our lot next to us. They are now six years old. We raised them to give to ORU. We have prayed about these trees. They went through a tornado and didn’t lose a leaf. We love ORU and want to do all we can for it." ORU was founded the year the seedlings sprouted.

The types of trees donated by the Cedar Ridge Country Club include 70 pin oak, 70 sweet gum, 45 incense, 15 white oak, 15 pine, 10 riverbirch, 4 white birch, 5 Japanese maple, 10 dogwood, and 5 weeping willow trees.

Robert Eskridge, Vice president of Business Affairs, reports that a chain of lakes is being planned for ORU. The trees will line the lakes and provide a restful place for students.

Stetson pilots radio outreach

EPIC vice-president Phil Stetson has recently volunteered to coordinate a fifteen-minute sign-on devotional program for radio station KVOJ in Emporia, Kansas.

Plans call for an outreach focused upon student listeners attending the two colleges located in Emporia.

Fulfillment of such a commitment will require the preparation on taped programs to be presented six days per week. A tentative format for the program includes a standard opening and closing with segments of various lengths and topics filling in the middle spot. The range of possibilities are by no means limited and will include interviews with ORU students and either live or pre-recorded singing of various music groups on campus. Devotional materials may be used in the program, but listeners may also send in their own music and participate.

AAES convention chairman Larry Scott and national president Kennells Oman review last minute details for next weekend’s congress at ORU.

AAES to meet

More than 250 students and many university presidents and deans from such schools as Wheaton, John Brown, Trinity, Viole, and Evangel, will flock to the campus March 25-26 as a part of the Evangelical Association of Schools meet for their convention. The AAES delegates are gathering to discuss the world’s problems, and offer a platform of solution-oriented opinions and resolutions.

“Christianity and Contemporary Culture” will be the topic of a seminar Thursday from 9:00 to 11:00 P.M. in Zippett Auditorium, featured on the panel will be Dr. Kenon Ronigan, author of Catholic Pentecostals; Tim Wallace, a leader of Michigan University’s riots last spring, and members of the Children of God.

“Student Leadership at a Christian College,” Thursday from 3:30 to 5 P.M. in Zippett Auditorium will include discussion of:

—Student Representation on the Board of Regents.
—How does a student senate represent the student body?
—What are the responsibilities of a student senate?
—What influences would senate have in judicial proceedings?
—What is the desired relationship of senate with the faculty and administration?

The above are but two of the AAES activities which ORU students may attend March 24-26. Only those listed on the agenda as “for delegates only” and “by invitation only” are not to be attended by ORU students.

Women’s curfew for Thursday has been extended to 12:00 midnight to enable them to attend AAES activities.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 24
5:00-11:00 p.m. Registration Convention Headquarters Freilade Lounge
THURSDAY, MARCH 25
7:15-8:00 a.m. Breakfast ——— Dining Commons 8:00-11:00 a.m. Registration Convention Headquarters Freilade Lounge
10:00-12:00 p.m. AAES Executive Board Meeting — Room 22, (delegates only) Homel Center
12:00-1:00 p.m. Lunch ——— Dining Commons
1:00-3:15 p.m. AAES National Business Meeting — Zippett Auditorium, Sec. 1 (delegates only)
3:30-5:00 p.m. Seminar: “Student Leadership at a Christian College” — Zippett Auditorium, Sec. 2 & 3
5:30-6:30 p.m. Supper ——— Dining Commons
7:00-9:00 p.m. President’s Reception — President Roberts’ (delegates only) Home
9:00-11:00 p.m. Seminar: “Christianity and Contemporary Culture” — Zippett Auditorium, Devotions Freilade Lounge
11:00-12:00 p.m. Registration Convention Headquarters Freilade Lounge
FRIDAY, MARCH 26
7:00-7:15 a.m. Breakfast ——— Dining Commons
7:15-8:15 a.m. Breakfast ——— Dining Commons
8:30-9:30 a.m. Orientation of Delegates to ESC Zippett Auditorium
10:00-11:00 a.m. Chapel: World Action Singers — LRC, 5th Hour Chapel
11:00-12:00 p.m. President Roberts’ Address to the Delegates Zippett Auditorium
12:00-1:00 p.m. Lunch ——— Dining Commons
1:00-2:30 p.m. AAES National Business Meeting — Zippett Auditorium
3:30-5:00 p.m. Seminar: “Student Leadership at a Christian College” — Zippett Auditorium, Committee Meetings
Campus Governance ——— Study Lounge, MrH
Christian Witness ——— T.V. Lounge, MrH
Foreign Affairs ——— T.V. Lounge, MrH
Domestic Concerns ——— Study Lounge, MrH
Religious Direction ——— Room 22, Homel Center
A complete agenda will be published in next week’s issue of the Oracle.
Cheryl Kuney: at home in the MHR likes life “where the boys are”

by Ruth Figi

Cheryl Kuney lives where every normal, all-American girl would want to live. Where the boys are.

As wife of the assistant housing director, Cheryl keeps house in an attractive, decorated-by-Cheryl apartment on the second floor of a high rise.

At first, Cheryl thought she was an intruder, and admits that living in the men’s dorm was hard to get used to. “It is a boy’s dorm, and they’re used to running around in whatever they want to wear. If I were over in the girl’s dorm, I wouldn’t want a boy living on my wing! But they have accepted it. They have never complained, and I have company and my girlfriends are coming up all the time.”

ORU boys really take good care of Cheryl. They carry her groceries and clothes, give advice informally, and armoils of cookies and brownies baking draw the girls to her door.

Many students wonder if there are embarrassing moments for a young girl living in a boy’s dorm? “Naturally,” says Cheryl. “But it’s kind of funny. It really doesn’t bother me. I think it makes a difference when you are married. A single girl would probably go hysterics, but if I married, I’d scream, yell, and cry—they’d do things just to see me upset!”

Cheryl and Gary officially met during “Soundtrack 68” in Fort Lauderdale. Gary was student director of the work, noticed Cheryl, and with his position was able to “arrange” to see her quite a bit. “I had dated a lot, and had come to the point where I wanted a boy who was sincere and right with the Lord. Gary was so sincere he was known as ‘straight Gary’ and we were both trying to find God’s perfect will at that time.” Being on the mission together in Florida drew them together and from the first, Cheryl admits, “we kind of knew we were for each other.”

A big concern of Gary’s was bringing Cheryl to live in the dorm so soon after being married. “Your first year you need lots of time together and need to establish many parts of your new life. But the other day she said she would be sorry when this semester was over because she would miss the girls so much. So my fears were abated!” said Gary.

The hardest time of their dorm life is probably from 5 till 11:00 each night. Gary receives about a dozen calls during this time, and needs to run off to take care of duties. “When you have both been away all day and want to be with one another, it’s hard. But there hasn’t been a big problem because the girls have been so good about not coming to the door unless they had a real problem,” Gary said.

Stamp’s Discipline! I really admire Cheryl’s major, and shed graduate in May. Carrying 15 1/2 hours, plus a correspondence course, keeps her busy. She has to discipline her time. “Before we were married, I just saw Gary when we went out. Then he’d have to take me back to the dorm at 11:00. When you are in love with someone, you kind of hate to do it! It was hard to go up and study.”

Gary’s major is in the liberal arts, and he is an extra-VOICE-Puerto Rico.

Don Eland joins W.A. singers

Veteran of music world tries new role

by Judy Schneider

“Don’t you think the kids had a lot to work—eventually to being a music major in the recently chosen World Action Singer, Don Eland. Every other year the students choose a World Action Singer for another position is impossible to know their feelings about our group. The last few weeks have been busy for him, learning song routines and choreography.

Don isn’t new to the music world by any means. The Elands lived 16 years in Denver, Colorado and when the university opened, they moved to Tulsa. The summer after his high school graduation, he went on tour with the ORU Collegiate Singers. They have traveled and performed in 14 countries of Europe for two and a half months, and Don participated as an instrumentalist.

Having his father as the head of the Music Department, one would suppose he received lots of encouragement toward a music major. However, this was not the case. In fact, Don’s father tried to dissuade him from entering music. So Don began his studies at ORU in the area of science. However, because of the lab time involved, he was forced to stay away from music completely—much to his dislike. So I convinced myself that music was what I wanted.

As a music major, Don is involved in several performing groups. These include the ORU Titan Band, the jazz ensemble, a woodwind trio, a clarinet quartet and the World Action Singers. His major instrument is the saxophone. He teaches clarinet and sax and takes lessons on the flute and oboe. He is also a representative for the jazz ensemble on the Music Council, which involves coordination from each major performing group.

If Don is an expert in any phase of music, he feels it would be jazz. Quincy Jones is his favorite artist in the world of the big band and sophisticated jazz sound in which he finds his special interest. His favorite instrumentalists are Herbie Mann and Paul Desmond.

While at ORU, Don has developed a respect for the faculty members and feels they are doing the best they can. As he says, “I feel my pet peeves is people who react before thinking—including both students and faculty.

After graduation Don plans to enter the armed forces as part of a performing group for three or four years. Then he wants to finish his Master’s and Ph.D. degrees. The ideal situation, he feels, would be a performing career or teaching woodwinds on the college level.

Cheryl Kuney: one giant leap for womankind

by John E. Schneider

Cheryl Kuney: one giant leap for womankind
editorials

Who will strike out against the darkness?

Who will strike a light against the darkness? Who will lift a voice against the roar? Who will cross the Norman’s land of hatred? Who will see the person not the crowd? Who will give himself, not just a token? Who will hear the heart that cries aloud? Who will teach the lonely soul that’s broken? Who will see the person not the crowd?

—Carmichael

Who? Why Christians, of course. From the musical “A Natural High,” these lyrics ask whether or not Christians are going to take Christ into everyone’s world by sharing His love and personal concern. But let’s not look too far to find those in need. As students we realize by now that there are some students on campus who profess but do not possess Jesus Christ, and also that there are some who do not even profess Jesus Christ. If you still think that because this is a Christian university everyone here is a Christian, let me be the first to shatter your little dream world. Take a close look at those in your residence hall. How many of them really care about the Bible, prayer, daily devotions, and church? In Matt. 7:20 we read, “Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them.” If a person is not living for Jesus Christ, we must accept one of two possibilities: either he is lost, or he is out of fellowship and searching for something. In either case, this person becomes part of our mission field, since every person is either a missionary or a mission field.

If you have honestly looked around you and have come to the conclusion that you are on a mission field, it’s time to get busy. You can and must play a vital role in reaching these students. The most important thing you must do is to be careful to maintain constant fellowship with the Lord so that your life will match the Christian standard. If you are constantly causing trouble or criticizing others, you cannot expect to be an effective witness. Then if your life does match up to Christian standards, why not begin to use your talents by participating in the Christian Service Council, layministry missions, area churches and church devotions. Don’t let this semester slip by without taking advantage of these areas of service. If you do not, you will be the one that loses the blessings.

If you really want to count for Christ while at ORU, take a public stand for him. Let those around you know where you stand. Be the one to strike a light against the darkness.

—Dan Carlson

Shrew tamed all in fun

Shakespeare a la carnival. It isn’t as ridiculous as it might sound. In fact, the combination came quite well last night as the ORU Drama Department premiered a breezy, side-splitting version of Shakespeare’s Taming of the Shrew in the Tinko-Barton Auditorium.

The element of comedy were woven by the playwright: an intolerable shrew vs. a domineering love, sibling rivalry, brow-beaten slaves, mistaken identities, etc. Together they portray the age-old tradition that “older sister (Kate) must marry before the younger sister (Bianca) can be wed.” Naturally, the older sister is a witch, the younger a prize catch. Enter the downy-conscious suitors (Petruccio) who accepts the challenge of taming the shrew; at his side is the faithful-and-gruff Gremio. In the wings: three suitors for Bianca: Senior Bapista, Lucentio and Hortensio, the latter two domning the guise of tutors in order secretly to woo the secluded maid.

At best as any, it’s the interpretation that counts. And according to the interpretation of director and drama professor Raymond Lewandowski, Shrew provided as good a time as any to let the audience laugh. The atmosphere was cocky, near slapstick, the contrasts were bold, the characters appropriately sassy. Sandi Martin entered in an outstanding performance as the shrew—both haughty and demure without stiffness. Complementing his shrew were well-interpreted versions of a shy Bianca, Don Crab, Balibol and Hotspur from Petruccio by David Smith. Chuck Jones was extremely funny as Gremio, as was Eugene Lynn in the lesser role of Vicentio the Impostor.

A few lines were slurred and somewhat shaky, a few characters were not fully developed, and at times the commotion was a bit much—but in all, Taming of the Shrew provided a fun evening at the theatre.

And after all, is there a better way to tame an audience than by laughter?

—JLD

COMMENTARY

Reader questions institutional breakdown

I believe I am one of a dying few in this country who believe in freedom, the flag, and policemen. Although patriotism is an old fashioned word to many, I still love my country and would, like it in fact turn it over to it and its people in this article. Realizing that breakdown and eventual abolishment of the respected American institutions is the only possible way by which the United States can be overthrown by an opposing force, the Communists are both attempting and succeeding in a gradual take-over through initiating a strong undercurrent of rebellion and destruction of the economical, social, moral, political, and Christian standards of our country. Included in this destructive pattern is the weakening of the police department, both nationally and locally. The boys on this campus who believe the campus police should not exist are probably the same students who enter a’s room and steal wallets, cameras, and other valuables. These same students probably believe that a thief running from the law and shooting at an officer should not be harmed by the policeman, not even in self-protection. Somehow, this incon-sistency in rights is seamless to me.

Also bothering me is the pacifi- cism our generation exhibits concerning communism. Maybe we have been so brain-washed that we actually forget communism is a form of government which is both the existence and need of God.

I only pray that we as Chris- tians ask God for help and lead- ership in this country. I am worthy of the saying, “In God We Trust.”

—Phil Boatwright

Shew tamed all in fun

Shakespeare a la carnival. It isn’t as ridiculous as it might sound. In fact, the combination came quite well last night as the ORU Drama Department premiered a breezy, side-splitting version of Shakespeare’s Taming of the Shrew in the Tinko-Barton Auditorium.

The element of comedy were woven by the playwright: an intolerable shrew vs. a domineering love, sibling rivalry, brow-beaten slaves, mistaken identities, etc. Together they portray the age-old tradition that “older sister (Kate) must marry before the younger sister (Bianca) can be wed.” Naturally, the older sister is a witch, the younger a prize catch. Enter the downy-conscious suitors (Petruccio) who accepts the challenge of taming the shrew; at his side is the faithful-and-gruff Gremio. In the wings: three suitors for Bianca: Senior Bapista, Lucentio and Hortensio, the latter two domning the guise of tutors in order secretly to woo the secluded maid.

At best as any, it’s the interpretation that counts. And according to the interpretation of director and drama professor Raymond Lewandowski, Shrew provided as good a time as any to let the audience laugh. The atmosphere was cocky, near slapstick, the contrasts were bold, the characters appropriately sassy. Sandi Martin entered in an outstanding performance as the shrew—both haughty and demure without stiffness. Complementing his shrew were well-interpreted versions of a shy Bianca, Don Crab, Balibol and Hotspur from Petruccio by David Smith. Chuck Jones was extremely funny as Gremio, as was Eugene Lynn in the lesser role of Vicentio the Impostor.

A few lines were slurred and somewhat shaky, a few characters were not fully developed, and at times the commotion was a bit much—but in all, Taming of the Shrew provided a fun evening at the theatre.

And after all, is there a better way to tame an audience than by laughter?

—JLD

commentary

Reader questions institutional breakdown

I believe I am one of a dying few in this country who believe in freedom, the flag, and policemen. Although patriotism is an old fashioned word to many, I still love my country and would, like it in fact turn it over to it and its people in this article. Realizing that breakdown and eventual abolishment of the respected American institutions is the only possible way by which the United States can be overthrown by an opposing force, the Communists are both attempting and succeeding in a gradual take-over through initiating a strong undercurrent of rebellion and destruction of the economical, social, moral, political, and Christian standards of our country. Included in this destructive pattern is the weakening of the police department, both nationally and locally. The boys on this campus who believe the campus police should not exist are probably the same students who enter a’s room and steal wallets, cameras, and other valuables. These same students probably believe that a thief running from the law and shooting at an officer should not be harmed by the policeman, not even in self-protection. Somehow, this inconsistency in rights is seamless to me.

Also bothering me is the pacifism our generation exhibits concerning communism. Maybe we have been so brain-washed that we actually forget communism is a form of government which is both the existence and need of God.

I only pray that we as Christians ask God for help and leadership in this country. I am worthy of the saying, “In God We Trust.”

—Phil Boatwright

opinion

Why religious music now?

“It’s a religious age,” or so it might seem from the list of hit songs of the several months. Judy Collins had a hit with “Amazing Grace.” Engle- bert Humperdinck’s “The Man’s a Thief” has been successful not only for him, but for several other singers, as well. George Harrison sang his praises in “My Sweet Lord.” And the opera “Jesus Christ Superstar” is the number two selling album, and why have religious songs cap- tured the top positions on the charts? What is behind their sud- den popularity? The Oracle asked the following question to discov- er ORU students’ opinion.

What do you think is the cause of the national interest in reli- gious music? Mr. T., “It’s just an age thing, because it’s not about the music, but all the scriptures say.” Barry Maloney, “People are not afraid of facing the truth, that’s why they’re not afraid to seek it, and they’re begin- ning to think that maybe there is something in religion.”

Brenda Boggs: “These are the older people. The young people are manifesting themselves to more people, and they are accepting it.”

Dan Rodgers: “It’s the ‘in’ thing to do, mainly because it’s in fashion.”

Bob Paterson: “The songs are an expression of a search for something—insubordination and the materialism and general life-style of the U.S.”

Laura Bird: “A lot of the singers have found their purpose in religion, and they sing these songs, not necessarily to please the audience, but to ex- press themselves. The general trend among young people is to deny religious things, it’s a re- ligious age.”
ORU schedules tourney
“one step nearer major status”

ORU’s Athletic Director and head basketball coach Ken Trickey on Tuesday, March 9, announced the inception of an annual major college basketball tournament. The tournaments, which are scheduled to be held December 29 thru Jan. 3 of each year, will begin this year in the Titan fieldhouse.

This year’s tournament, to be called the Oral Roberts Classic, features East Carolina, Loyola of Los Angeles, Connecticut, and ORU, and will be conducted under the auspices of the Tulsa Downtown Lions Club.

This is one of the steps we have taken toward major college ranks and national recognition. This tournament will equal any big tournament in the country as far as guarantees for participating colleges are concerned. Awards, citations, and national publicity go, and will be far easier to come by,” reported Trickey. “We plan to make this the best holiday tournament in the midwest and one of the finest in the country.”

Trickey said the event, scheduled this year for the ORU gym, Center or Fairground Pavilion, should ticket sales exceed the $100,000 capacity of the Tulsa Fairground issue. Seating after this year will present no other problems as the ORU Special Events Center with its 10,525 seating capacity will be completed by November of this year.

“I’m confident that the tournament will attract many of the big names in college basketball,” expressed Trickey. “We’ve already received good responses from some of the nation’s foremost colleges and from major colleges across the country concerning future participation in the tournament.”

The ORU Titans will be playing two of its major college games in this tournament and Trickey hopes they will be able to be followed by then. East Carolina from the Southern Conference posted a 13-12 record last season in a “Rebuilding Year” and finished third in their conference. Returning lettermen include 6-10 Al Faber who led the conference in 32 rebounds per outing, 6-7 Jim Bronson, and 6-5 forward Dave Franklin. An exciting array of former freshmen will also be moving to varsity.

Loyola of Los Angeles with a 15-10 record, including a victory over Cincinnati at Cincinnati, finished second in their West Coast Athletic Conference. Returning for next season will be their top three in the Vauclus Conference. Their top three returnees will be 6-2 guard Al Vaughn who averaged 11.7.

Finally, the host team ORU which Trickey feels should be the top attraction. Last season’s squad posted a 21-5 script and will lose only Raywood Hill from its starting five.

Golfers place fourth in OSU invitational

The Oral Roberts University golf team, which competed yesterday with Oklahoma University, Oklahoma Baptist, and Oklahoma City University at Norman, will return to that course as the home of Oklahoma University for OU’s Invitational Tournament which begins Sunday and winds up on Tuesday. “One of the reasons we are playing in the OU tourney this year is to see which golf teams in the Southwest and the West have to play in tough tournaments like this to keep ourselves looking good for next year’s weight,” Coach Myron Price said early this week.

“We’re working hard to be able to do well in the OU tournament which will feature our golf teams in the Southwest and the West have to play in tough tournaments like this to keep ourselves looking good for next year’s weight.”

Coach Price’s charges are working at it for the linksters placed fourth in the Oklahoma State University Cowboy Invitational last weekend, placing behind the host OU team, No. 1-ranked Texas, 7th-ranked Southern Illinois, and 9th-ranked Oklahoma. Price observed, expressing satisfaction at the finish.

“Our putting and our chipping is weak and had been able to practice on it more, we might have edged out third place OU,” he added. The OU squad scored an even 600 to emerge 1.2 strokes ahead of OU’s 612.

Meanwhile, ORU managed to play four strokes better than cross town rival Tulsa University, which finished with 616.

“We hope to beat TU every time,” a pleased Coach Price said. And the Titan golfers had yet another opportunity to do so in a triangular meet at their home golf course at the Meadowbrook Country Club Tuesday afternoon.

“We hope to do well at the Norman golf course,” Peace remarked, “because the golf course there is a long course and our hitters are long off the tee.”

“One goal collectively as a team is to give tournament victories,” he continued. “Right now, we will only get better.”

Peace indicated that the first two or three positions on the team are established, while there will be a lot of competition between eight boys for the last three positions for the top six players.

Netters rank ninth

UCLA No. 1, Southern Cal No. 4, and Oral Roberts University No. 9.

Tennis, anyone? Those rankings appear at first to pertain to basketball. And that is where ORU would like to be in the near future. But the Titans are already there in tennis. The latest issue of Tennis West magazine ranks the top ten teams in the nation and ORU is rated No. 9.

However, Saturday’s first West Texas won its invitational round robin tournament with a 4-3 victory over ORU. But the Titans finished with a 5-1 triumph over Kansas State College to earn runner up laurels. The defeat boosted their season record to 7-2.

According to Sports Director Bob Brooks. “West Texas wasn’t nationally ranked, but had a strong team with the No. 6 man just as good as the No. 1 man. This defeat shouldn’t set ORU back any in the ranking though, ORU has already posted wins over 15th ranked Pan American and 19th ranked Eastern. Our three days of home play will bring Southwestern Oklahoma, Texas Christian University and Oklahoma State to the Titan’s courts March 18-20.

Nettie player Jose Solc promises serves for this week’s three-weekend

Fresh right-hander Larry Tolbert recorded his first win as an ORU hurler, scattering eight William Jewell hits for two runs only.

Tomorrow and next Monday will see Creighton University, the No. 1 independent baseball power in this section of the NCAA, visit ORU for a three-game series. The Saturday doubleheader at Northside Park will begin at 1 p.m. with ORU’s single game also to be at 1 p.m.

Titan baseballers host Creighton U.

The Titan baseball team increased its record to 5-3 last weekend as it swept a doubleheader from William Jewell College 6-4 and 5-2 last Saturday afternoon.

Monday afternoon action with Northeastern State College at home saw the ORU nine win two more to advance to today’s home doubleheader with East Central State College with a 2-1 mark.

It was all ORU in the Saturday doubleheader, as sophomore Jeff Jack Cheney allowed a run in the first inning of the first game and then stopped William Jewell’s hopes on six hits and no more runs.

Cheney’s fine pitching performance, his second victory against no losses, received strong support from a 9-hit attack led by transfer outfielder Gary Marling’s long home run in the fourth inning.

Two more homers by ORU hitters sparked the ORU scoring spree in the 1-2 rout in the second game. Sophomore leftfielder Richard Runk and senior Larry Cook belted round-trippers as the Titans scored twice in the third and second innings, once in the third, and four times in both the fourth and fifth innings.

Peggy’s Fashion

5980 East 31st
Sheridan Royal Shopping Center
622-6806

Bobby Brooks
Mr. Fine
Sizes 5-20

Peggy’s Fashion

The Titan baseball team increased its record to 5-3 last weekend as it swept a doubleheader from William Jewell College 6-4 and 5-2 last Saturday afternoon.

Monday afternoon action with Northeastern State College at home saw the ORU nine win two more to advance to today’s home doubleheader with East Central State College with a 2-1 mark.

It was all ORU in the Saturday doubleheader, as sophomore Jeff Jack Cheney allowed a run in the first inning of the first game and then stopped William Jewell’s hopes on six hits and no more runs.

Cheney’s fine pitching performance, his second victory against no losses, received strong support from a 9-hit attack led by transfer outfielder Gary Marling’s long home run in the fourth inning.

Two more homers by ORU hitters sparked the ORU scoring spree in the 1-2 rout in the second game. Sophomore leftfielder Richard Runk and senior Larry Cook belted round-trippers as the Titans scored twice in the third and second innings, once in the third, and four times in both the fourth and fifth innings.

Peggy’s Fashion

5980 East 31st
Sheridan Royal Shopping Center
622-6806

Bobby Brooks
Mr. Fine
Sizes 5-20

Peggy’s Fashion

5980 East 31st
Sheridan Royal Shopping Center
622-6806

Bobby Brooks
Mr. Fine
Sizes 5-20

Peggy’s Fashion

5980 East 31st
Sheridan Royal Shopping Center
622-6806

Bobby Brooks
Mr. Fine
Sizes 5-20

Peggy’s Fashion

5980 East 31st
Sheridan Royal Shopping Center
622-6806

Bobby Brooks
Mr. Fine
Sizes 5-20

Peggy’s Fashion

5980 East 31st
Sheridan Royal Shopping Center
622-6806

Bobby Brooks
Mr. Fine
Sizes 5-20

Peggy’s Fashion

5980 East 31st
Sheridan Royal Shopping Center
622-6806

Bobby Brooks
Mr. Fine
Sizes 5-20

Peggy’s Fashion

5980 East 31st
Sheridan Royal Shopping Center
622-6806

Bobby Brooks
Mr. Fine
Sizes 5-20

Peggy’s Fashion

5980 East 31st
Sheridan Royal Shopping Center
622-6806

Bobby Brooks
Mr. Fine
Sizes 5-20