Charles Evers Day

ORU honors first black mayor of Mississippi town

On Wednesday, September 27 Oral Roberts University will have as its guest Charles Evers, mayor of Fayette, Mississippi. September 27 has been named "Charles Evers Day," and will honor one of the most influential black politicians in America.

Charles Evers is the brother of Medgar Evers, NAACP State Field secretary who was killed in 1963 by a sniper's bullet. In 1969 Charles Evers became the first black to be elected mayor of a biracial Mississippi town.

In 1971 Mayor Evers was nominated as the first black candidate for governor of his state at a convention held in Jackson. Mayor Evers lost the bid for governorship and is currently mayor of Fayette.

"Charles Evers Day" at ORU will commence Wednesday at 9:50 a.m. when all sociology and history students will be able to participate in an open discussion with Mayor Evers in Zoppelt Auditorium.

Mayor Evers will address the entire student body and faculty in the chapel session at Mabee Center at 11 a.m. He will later meet with the members of the administration and faculty at an informal luncheon.

The final event of the day will be a press conference in Zoppelt Auditorium at 1:45 p.m. for all local press and television reporters and all college students.

Mayor Evers has devoted his life to public service. He holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Social Science from Alcorn A&M College in Mississippi. He has received honorary Doctor of Law degrees from Tougaloo College in Mississippi, Luther College in Iowa, and Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri.

Mayor Evers is currently a Chubb Fellow at Timothy Dwight College, at Yale University, and is working on a degree at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst by lecturing in the field of race relations.

Charles Evers, mayor of Fayette, Mississippi, will speak in chapel Wednesday, September 27. Evers, the first black to be elected mayor of a biracial Mississippi town, is one of the most influential black politicians in America.

Over 1,200 attend Holy Spirit class

After the third class session, over 1,200 students are now attending "Holy Spirit in the Now," the only class ever taught by President Roberts at ORU.

President Oral Roberts has been invested as the first person to fill the endowed chair. This endowment, the first for ORU, came from the estate of the late Sir Arthur Rank, a British motion picture producer and director and a prominent layman in the Methodist Church of England.

President Roberts said Rank intended to make a $500,000 grant to endow the chair but died on March 29, the day he was to convey the funds.

His trustees knew of Rank's intentions and are honoring his desire. Their only stipulation is that they will invest the principal and will grant the earnings, which amount to about $25,000 a year, to the University for five years. At the end of this time, if the trustees feel it has been used effectively, the money will be turned over to the University.

"I am pleased that our first endowed chair deals with the Holy Spirit, not only because of Rank's interest but because of its timeliness, in view of the recent emphasis on the Holy Spirit in most denominations and faiths," President Roberts said.

Otis Winters, president of the Educational Development Corp. and a regent of the University, presided at the investiture held during the first session of the Holy Spirit course. This course, taught by President Roberts, will be the main area of outlay of the endowment. Lectures will be both filmed and published, and funds are also allotted to bring in guest lecturers.

In addition to President Roberts' personal knowledge and experiences, three texts are used: "The Baptism with the Holy Spirit" by Oral Roberts, "Aglow with the Spirit" by Dr. Robert Frost, and "They Speak with Other Tongues" by John Sherrill.

Student ministers by phone

"Hello. Is this the Prayer Tower?"

"No . . . but I know how to pray."

Jim Cobb has a unique ministry. He has received over 20 such calls since his telephone was installed three weeks ago. This is explained by the fact that there is only a one digit difference between his phone number and that of the Abundant Life Prayer Group.

Calls are sporadic, coming at odd times (one at 3:00 a.m.), from such distant places as California, New York, and Minnesota.

When callers are informed of their mistake, reactions vary. But Jim says, "When they find out you're a student at ORU and you're a wing chaplain, and that you're willing to pray, they are usually glad to have you pray for them."

When asked if he considers this unusual situation just an accident, Jim replied, "Not really. This phone has brought me a lot closer to the Lord."

Faculty gains eight full-time, fifteen adjunct members

Oral Roberts University has added eight new full-time faculty members. They are Dr. Cherie Dawson, Ralph Fagin, Connie Fritzler, Douglas Gronberg, Dr. Roger Hartman, Brenda Hessenaur, Barbara Kittner, and Donald Robinson.

Dr. Cherie Dawson is teaching in the Education Department. A graduate of Oral Roberts University, Dr. Dawson worked in the ORU Counseling Center last semester. She recently received her Ph.D. degree from the University of Tulsa.

Holding his first faculty position, Ralph Fagin, also an ORU graduate, is in the Behavioral Science Department. Fagin received his M.A. degree in sociology from Oklahoma State University and is currently working on his Ph.D. degree.

Connie Fritzler is instructing in the Secretarial Science Department. Previously, Ms. Fritzler taught vocational education at the high school level and in night school at Tulsa Junior College. She received her M. of Ed.

degree with a specialization in vocational education from Colorado State University.

Douglas Gronberg is experiencing his first full-time faculty position in the English Department. Gronberg received his M.A. degree from the University of Tulsa, where he was also a teaching assistant.

Dr. Roger Hartman comes to the Natural Science Department after teaching at the University of Tulsa for 10 years. Dr. Hartman earned his Ph.D. degree in physics from Oklahoma State University.

Brenda Hessenaur is teaching Spanish in the Modern Language Department. Ms. Hessenaur received her M.A. degree from the University of Toronto. She spent her junior year and last year in Spain.

A native of Germany, Barbara Kittner is teaching German in the Modern Language Department. Ms. Kittner received her M.A. degree from the Middlebury College Graduate School of German in Germany.

Donald Robinson comes to the Music Department after 6 years as a professor of music at the University of Northern Colorado. Previously a free-lance violinist in Denver, Robinson is Assistant Concert Master of the Tulsa Philharmonic Orchestra. He received his M.A. degree from the University of Denver.

In addition to the eight full-time faculty, fifteen adjunct faculty have been added. They are Arthur Allen, Tim Cameron, and Sam McCamey in the Health and Physical Education Department; Nolan Christian, Stephanie Frank, and Dr. Lucien Rose in the Behavioral Science Department; David Connor, Barbara Mufti, and Gale Cisneros in the Modern Language Department; Cheryl Evans in the Theology Department; Garrick Little and Esther Hyvarinen in the Natural Science Department; Marilyn Olsen and Harold Campbell in the Music Department; and Charles Scott in the Social Science Department.

Budget passes

Senate allocates telephone money

Have you ever wondered what happens to your $50 student activity fee? According to the proposed budget for 1972-73, which was passed by the Student Senate last Monday, about $750 of the total fees will pay the telephone bills for Senate members. Quoting from the minutes, "Bradley Crawford, ASB treasurer, moved that we pay all monthly phone bills for executive members and one-half the bill for members and committee chairmen. The total cost will be approximately $750, taken from the Senate operating expenses." This particular allocation passed by a vote of 12-1, with one abstention.

The senators feel that telephones are necessary for communication. They feel that the phones will be used primarily for Senate business. For this reason, they feel that they should not have to pay the bills personally, but should be allowed to charge the cost to the student body.

However, a phone is a luxury this year, not a necessity. Not everyone on campus has one; not everyone can afford one. Yet, everyone will be paying the student senators' phone bills. For some students, this will mean paying more than one bill. For the others, it will mean paying someone else's bill, when they can't afford a phone for themselves.

Another consideration has to do with when the phones are used. If the students are paying the full cost for the executive officers' telephones, then the students have the right to expect that every call made from those phones will be strictly for Senate business. Serious doubts can be raised about the chance of that happening.

Apparently the senators themselves have doubts about the acceptability of student body subsidies for Senate luxuries. In the printed budget, no mention is made of the $750 allocation for telephone bills. However, a comparison of the proposed budget drawn up last spring and the proposed budget drawn up this fall shows a difference of $740 in the Senate operating expense budget. Could this be coincidence or subterfuge?

Although the University administration has yet to approve the budget, the Student Senate has obviously begun a precedent of using student money for more than Senate business. The practice should be stopped now. The results of a straw poll show that the majority of students agree. Senators should pay their own phone bills, or do without.

George Wallace receives prayer during special chapel

The technological was made to serve the spiritual during chapel Wednesday, September 13, as the entire ORU community prayed for Alabama Governor George Wallace via a special telephone hookup.

On the previous weekend, a Wallace aide had contacted the University to convey the Governor's desire to have President Roberts come and pray with him. Roberts went to the Governor's mansion on Monday, September 11. At this time, Wallace experienced a spiritual renewal in his life, and his wife received the Baptism of the Holy Spirit.

During chapel Wednesday, Wallace said, "I feel closer to God than I have in a long, long time. I feel as you do, Oral, that all healing comes from God."

Ted Smith, Nancy Fortenberry, and Leslie Cross, students, and Sam McCamey, adjunct faculty member, all from Alabama, led the assembly in prayers for the healing of Governor Wallace.

President Roberts then asked the assembly to become an unbroken chain of love as they brought the Governor before God. Wallace commented, "I'm a little overcome . . . I'm usually not at a loss for words, but I almost am now."

Freshman Cathy Epstein of Maryland concluded the phone call by expressing her prayer in the singing of "The Twenty-Third Psalm" and "Amazing Grace."

Wallace said, "I'd like to be with all of you as long as I can" and then prayed for the Oral Roberts ministry and the university. He closed with the thought, "Christ is the answer to our problems, both here and abroad."

It was announced at Vespers Sunday that the Wallace office had called to report on the Governor's progress. On Friday, the Governor was not feeling any pain, although the numbness in his legs was still present. He called in his aides, and with their assistance, got dressed, and worked in his office in the capitol Friday afternoon.

Senate Soundings

Senate calls editor recommendation invalid

Student Senate refused to approve the Perehelion editorships last Monday morning during the regular meeting. Debbie Hunter and Becky Petty were not appointed as co-editors of the yearbook, because the recommendations came from an invalid committee.

The Student Publications Committee is charged with making recommendations to Senate concerning the editorships of student publications. The committee is listed as a Student Activity Committee under Bylaw Six of the constitution. According to Article Five, the chairmen of such committees are to be appointed by Senate. A chairman for the publications committee has not yet been selected, therefore, the recommendations came from a committee which was not valid this year. Those who met and made the recommendation had no authority to do so, because the meeting was not called for by the proper chairman, according to the constitution.

In other action, Senate voted to accept the charters of two new campus organizations: Young Voters for the President and Young Voters for McGovern. These organizations will attempt to influence the ORU students' votes in the coming presidential election.

Senate also voted to accept the 1972-73 budget as follows:

Movie review

'Nicholas' draws praise

by Phil Boatwright

It's true that I am a fan of the happy ending and "Nicholas and Alexandra" falls short of that, but nevertheless it is one of the most interesting, beautiful, and educational films I have seen.

It is a great three-hour example of the time honored Hollywood extravaganza with splendid costumes, glittering palaces, and larger-than-life historical figures.

The story centers around Nicholas' belief in his divine right as a Romanov to rule Russia. As he refuses to acknowledge the world beyond the palace door, he finds he can't hold his beloved Russia together, even with Alexandra badgering him to act like a Tsar.

If there is a weak point to this film, it lies in the true relationship between the depraved monk Rasputin and the Tsarina which was never developed to the extent that we find in our history books.

A long movie, but filled with beauty, terror, and moving performances by Janet Suzman, Michael Juyston, and cameos by Jack Hawkins, Sir Lawrence Olivier, and Sir Michael Redgrave.

And forgive me, Doctor Paul, but I learned more about Russia and her people from this film than in my two years of Humanities.

California sophomore eyes national title

Cotton is king in Tulare County, California and it is Maid of Cotton Davalynn Chamberlain's responsibility to extoll all the virtues of cotton by talking to civic groups throughout her state and modeling her all-cotton wardrobe furnished by the industry.

Davalynn, a sophomore transfer student from Porterville, Calif., has reigned as Maid of Cotton since last October. Her reign will continue till after the national pageant in Memphis, Tenn., in December. About 50 girls will compete for the national title.

"In the major cotton-producing states of California, Texas, Georgia, and Mississippi the Maid of Cotton is quite an honor and requires a great deal of traveling. The title is based on modeling ability, congeniality, and impromptu speaking ability," explains Ms. Chamberlain. "If you have a big mouth and a big smile it really helps."

All cotton candidates must also be from a cotton-producing family.

As an ambassador for the cotton industry she received $300 which she used to sew her eight garment modeling wardrobe.

The brown-eyed, five feet, six inches tall, brunette is an elementary education major although she is equally interested in music. She sings and plays the piano and guitar.

Ms. Chamberlain believes, "Being Maid of Cotton has given me the opportunity to meet a lot of people I would not have met otherwise. When I sing before audiences, I always sing songs about the Lord.

"I grew up familiar with the tent crusades of Oral Roberts. My grandmother has been a prayer partner of his ministry for a long time and my father besides being a cotton rancher is the minister of an interdenominational church.

"I had heard of ORU all my life and so when I had to chose a university to transfer, I only applied to go here.

"Although the faculty here are more patient and interested in their students, the students here have the same problems and questions that youth at other colleges have. But the difference is that all the answers to these problems and questions are right here—we don't have to look as hard for the truth."

Tulsa trial recessed for Jesus people

Trial for 10 "Jesus People" charged with trespassing was recessed Thursday night after the group's lawyer moved that charges be dismissed.

Hearings for the 10 youths arrested Sept. 14 at Southroads Mall are scheduled to resume at 1:30 today.

A non-jury trial for six other members of the Christ is the Answer Crusade, Inc., arrested Saturday on similar charges at Utica Square, is scheduled to begin when the first trial ends.

Wednesday the 16 defendants were released about 10 a.m. to their attorney, Jim Fransein. The males had been held in the city jail and the females in the county jail.

Four hours of prosecution testimony Thursday brought repeated objections from Fransein and heated exchanges between Fransein and City Prosecutor Jack Morgan. A crowd of nearly 200

Officer dies of heart attack

A. B. Impson Jr., 47, a university security officer and Tulsa Post Office employee died early Tuesday morning apparently of a heart attack. Burial was in Floral Haven Cemetery on Thursday.

Impson had been a security officer for over two years during a four year period. Before coming to ORU, Impson worked for the Rock Island Railroad as a clerk.

spectators overflowed the courtroom in the Municipal Courts and Police Building.

Prosecution witnesses testified that members of the group were given a table in the mall on Sept. 13 from which to distribute literature, but returned the following day and continued to circulate throughout the mall and handout pamphlets after being asked to stop.

Fransein asked that charges against four of the youths be dismissed on the grounds that they were not identified by either of the prosecution witnesses, John B. Griffin, manager of the shopping center, and Steve McKim, head of security for the center.

He based his plea for dismissal of charges against the other six on alleged insufficient evidence and higher court rulings in what he said were similar cases.

Leaders of the 138-member group say over 20 people have accepted the Lord during their stay in the jail, so they believe "the Lord has a purpose in everything."

Life is very basic for the members of the traveling ministry, with women sleeping on cots in one tent and the men sleeping on sleeping bags in another. Each married couple has their own tent.

Most of the members of the group which has been in existence almost a year, are between 18 and 25. However, several married couples and small children travel with the crusaders.

Maid of Cotton Davalynn Chamberlain returned this week to Tulare County, California, to host the County Cotton Fashion Show and model her all-cotton wardrobe.

'Colossus'

Computers take over

"Colossus, the Forbin Project" will be shown tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Zoppelt Auditorium. The cost for the film, sponsored by ORU's delegation to the Oklahoma Intercollegiate Legislature, will be $.75 per person and $1.25 per couple.

"Colossus" is a computer to which the United States government irrevocably delegates absolute power to evaluate conditions and wage nuclear war. But when the massive cybernetics complex, created by the brilliant Dr. Forbin, senses the presence of a similar unit inside the Soviet Union, the two unite and use their unlimited intelligence and power to subjugate their human masters with the threat of instant nuclear destruction and impose an oppressive reign of fear upon the entire planet. "Colossus" stars Eric Braoden, Susan Clark, and Gordon Pinsent.

Senior survey reveals attitudes

Last year the Educational Testing Services conducted a national "College Senior Survey," in which the ORU graduating class of 1972 took part. The survey revealed many things about these seniors.

The 1972 graduating class was 55 percent male, 45 percent female. Ninety-four percent were white and two percent were black. All came from a Protestant background, with their families in a slightly higher income bracket than the national norm.

Scholastically, 46 percent of the seniors had a B average in their overall studies, with 46 percent achieving a B+ average in their major fields. Sixty percent of the class is hoping for a master's compared to 56 percent nationally. Fifteen percent will work towards their doctorate degree, compared to nine percent nationally.

Socially, 42 percent were either engaged or married before graduation, with 25 percent planning to "pursue marriage" this fall.

In choosing their fields these seniors ranked as important "the opportunity to be of service to others, security, and the chance to work with people rather than things." Influence from friends, parents, and professionals in their

Plaza vigil

Mixing a few waves to friends inside Tulsa County Jail with shouts of "Praise the Lord" were these members of the Christ Is The Answer Crusade. The group set up a cross on the north side of the plaza, opposite the county courthouse and kept up a vigil since several from their group were arrested for trespassing. Their trial will continue this afternoon.

5:45 a.m. and calisthenics

Dr. Farah heads disciple training

by Renee Colwill

Starting the day at 5:45 seems impossible to many, especially when a session of calisthenics follows. But 33 students started 6 days a week that way all during the summer. Emphasizing the spirit-filled life and centering it in an atmosphere stressing the word discipline, the program, headed by Dr. Charles Farah, was geared to shape the lives of those involved.

In the middle of June, Larry and Linda Hartwig, a young couple interested in Christian training, moved out of their house and, along with 26 boys, moved into the Kappa Sigma Fraternity House at TU. Sociology professor, Diane Parsons, from the University of Arkansas, moved into the Hartwig's house with seven girls. Thus situated, the people involved, from high schools and colleges, lived and learned together what discipleship means.

Christ-centered environment

In the New Testament we read about how Christ trained his disciples, endeavoring to reproduce His character in men. Though the men were quite ordinary, through intensive training, they became men on fire for Christ. Following that example, this program strove to teach and discipline lives, that strong character might be established and grown within a maturing Christian. Convinced that this character does not occur by accident, but by discipline, hard work, and training, the staff tried to create a Christ-centered environment where this character could blossom.

After the miraculous feat of rising at 5:45 there was time at the beginning of the average day for calisthenics, breakfast, and devotions. All of those involved had jobs, so they would leave and work for eight hours before returning together for supper. After cleaning up the kitchen and living area, they gathered together for the evening activity.

Security revamps image

The security department of Oral Roberts University has undergone a number of changes to increase security and create a new image for the department.

The most noticeable change is the dress of the security personnel. The officers no longer wear the traditional police uniform, but are attired in blue sport coats and ties. This will help the students, faculty, and visitors understand that the security force is a means for assistance and not a low enforcement department.

On Monday nights they went door to door witnessing. On Tuesday nights a teacher, possibly Dr. Farah or another professor, would teach them in a seminar type of meeting. Wednesday nights were almost free. This was a time to do their laundry, write letters, memorize verses, and get ready for the Bible study. Thursday nights they gathered for a worship service and on Friday nights there was a Bible study. Saturday mornings they all cleaned up around the houses before leaving for a more casual group activity, and on Sunday mornings they went to church. Their time was fairly well organized and they had very little time to themselves. One of those in the program, Clay Sterrett, said that this discipline of time had a really big effect on his life because of its great demands.

The program was not thrown together at a whim, but it was something that had been prayed about for over a year. There were no advertisements for those wishing to get involved. The idea was passed by word of mouth. Involvement was completely voluntary. Within the program the Christian life was studied to be a balance like a wheel with four spokes. These four principles are prayer, Bible reading, witnessing and fellowship. Each person who was interested was given a list of these principles and of the objectives involved, and was then given a two-page application.

Spirit of unity; real witness

One of the most beautiful things about the program was the unity of those involved. Even though they were from such varied backgrounds and had such different personalities, they could be one in the Spirit of the Lord. Many people passed in and out of the doors of the fraternity house, and these people could sense this spirit. Among those living at the house, there was not only a strong love for Jesus, but a real love for one another. Whether they were witnessing to some intellectuals, to a 65-year-old hobo, or to the two girls who just stopped in for a drink of water, the love shone through.

Ron McIntosh, sophomore, felt that to him the basic principle most needed was realizing "how we as Christians can learn to reproduce the life of Jesus and our knowledge in others." Another valuable principle that they learned was that of service. It is hard to learn to serve and to seek out a brother's needs—and to help him. Found in John 13 and in Philippians 2:3, these principles can be used in our daily living.

The highlight of the program was a three-day trip where the trainees left in pairs to go out witnessing. All they took with

Breakfast and early morning devotions were an important time for sharing with one another. Dr. Farah them was a toothbrush, a pen, and a New Testament. Doug Pritchett and Doug Milliron were partners and after praying about the trip found that the Lord had impressed them both, individually, to go to Norman, Oklahoma. Neither had been there before. They left and decided that they would not hitchhike, but start walking and let the Lord provide the way. They were picked up by different people and in each car were able to witness about what they were doing and why. In Norman they went to the Oklahoma University campus, where a janitor, crossing the campus, saw one of them laying on the ground and came over to talk to him. After hearing what they were doing, he invited them to spend the three days at his house. Doug Pritchett said that through this experience he really learned to trust the Lord because in the different situations he could see the perfectness of God's planning. While staying at the man's home they were able to witness to him, and the janitor, who had formerly been a Christian, came back to the Lord and rededicated his life to Christ.

There were other opportunities to witness in Norman. Another blessing was being able to go to an Agape love feast at the OU campus and pray with the leader of this group to receive the baptism of the Holy Spirit. They both felt that this was worth the trip in itself.

According to Dr. Farah, "Many Christians would love to do something for the Lord and tell others about Him. The spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. Something is needed to undergird the desire to live for Christ, and that is discipline. Within the disciplined surroundings there was room for spiritual growth and free expression of the gifts of the spirit. The final test of this program will be in the fruit it bears, and it has already been acclaimed as having exceeded expectations."

Figlet's Finds . . .

Hi everyone! Welcome back to Figlet's little corner of the ORU world. This column is for you . . . a little humor, and a little seriousness.

Try to remember a time in September when . . .

School started with a big surprise for a large number of us. We found ourselves living three or four to a room in Braxton Hall, with boxes stacked to the ceiling, and wall-to-wall typewriters, hairdryers, make-up mirrors, etc. Below us were the practice rooms, and we heard trumpets, pianos, organs, drums, and flutes play everything from Rachmaninoff to "Something Good is Going to Happen to You."

Then we asked Joyce Shields if we could have clean sheets and her answer was, "Just turn them over and use the other side!"

Remember mail call, waiting 20 minutes at least before your name was called out? Jennie Keast remembers. She decided to do Jimmy Jones a favor by taking his mail to him. First she stopped off at her room on 3rd floor WHR and heard Jimmy on the sidewalk below, saying to a friend, "Man, I wish I could get a letter soon." So, Jennie just dropped the letter out the window, and watched Jimmy's shocked expression when his friend picked it up and said, "It . . . it's for YOU!"

Now we're all settled snug in the new dorms, with so much space that some even have empty shelves and drawers. It's hard to remember back when we were living with a few little inconveniences. Maybe that's how it will be in heaven. Our few troubles on earth will soon be forgotten! That will be some moving day, and I bet we won't have to carry boxes in the rain!

New degree offered

Social work major: people-helper ready

by Bonnie Howard

In a continuing effort to train Christian men and women for productive careers, ORU now offers to students a newly created social work major.

The social work, psychology, and sociology curricula now constitute the Behavioral Sciences Department. This department, recently brought into existence by the Dean of Academic Affairs, Dr. Carl Hamilton, has 250 students enrolled as majors.

According to Dr. Paul Inbody, chairman of the department, the new social work program was developed "because we have a lot of people coming to ORU who are people-helper oriented. They do not want to become ministers or missionaries, but still want to help their fellow man."

Previously such students attained a B.A. in psychology or sociology, and ended up as social workers. Reasoning that students going into social work needed more specialized training, the Department of Behavioral Sciences added the new curriculum. "Students responded to this reasoning," commented Dr. Inbody, "with about 50 to 60 declaring social work majors."

The biggest problem encountered with the new program is recruiting faculty, because, as Dr. Inbody states, "Not many social workers are Christians, and of those who are, not many share the values and goals of Christian education." ORU has secured four part-time social workers who are meeting curriculum needs for this semester. Of these, two are black, and are the first black ORU instructors outside the Athletic Department.

ORU is working closely with Oklahoma University in the sharing of faculty in field work placement. Next year, two full-time social workers will be recruited as instructors.

The social work curriculum includes varied sociology and psychology courses as well as more specialized courses in Introduction to Social Welfare, Community Development, and Social Work with Individuals and Families.

Students who are declared majors must take all seven (21 hours) of the social work courses, and three (9 hours) courses from a suggested list. In the senior year, the social work student does internship or field placement in the Tulsa community under the supervision of full-time social workers.

There is a demand for social workers, and ORU expects to graduate 20 next year. Dr. Inbody envisions the added possibility of placing ORU graduates on the job market and into large metropolitan churches with several ministers. The graduate with a degree in social work could do individual and family counseling within the church to relieve pastors, while helping to meet the total needs of the family in the church.

ORU students observe one of twelve in a series of oil paintings titled "Character Studies of the Men Who Followed Jesus Christ of Nazareth." The portraits are on exhibit on the third floor of the LRC.

Portraits of twelve disciples on three-year loan to ORU

A famed series of oil paintings has been acquired on a three-year loan by Oral Roberts University. The 12 paintings, depicting the artist's conception of the disciples of Christ, are the work of the late George Leonard Shultz, a St. Louis and Tulsa portraitist, who completed the paintings in 1956 following several years of intense research into the lives of the disciples.

Five Tulsa businessmen are among the eleven persons who posed for the paintings, while the artist himself posed for Judas

Isariot. Shultz called the collection "Character Studies of the Men Who Followed Jesus Christ of Nazareth."

An unusual feature of the collection is the frames, carved and decorated by the artist himself, each of which is embellished by a symbol depicting the manner in which the martyred disciple met his death.

Immediately upon completion, the paintings were exhibited at Philbrook Art Museum in Tulsa, and the artist, using 12 charcoal drawings, began a series of lectures on the paintings before church groups, civic organizations, and clubs. The collection will be displayed in various locations on campus, beginning on the third floor (the main floor) of the Learning Resources Center this week.

Within the depth of the artist's study, physical characteristics of the twelve unfolded. Facts such as that Peter, the steadfast "rock," was a tall, broadly built man with wide shoulders, and rough features, including deep-set grey eyes, heavy brows, and a large nose, were uncovered. Small pieces of information picked up bit by bit, such as that Judas had red hair, John was shorter than average and was a mystical type of person, and James was a "brooding and contemplative individual," and that Nathanael, the handsome son of a rich man was under a fig tree meditating when Jesus first saw him, combine together to make quite a lengthy descriptions of these men so loved by Jesus.

Soon after completing the paintings, the artist, then in his early '60's, his interest in religion deepened because of his research, began study for the ministry. Upon being ordained as an Episcopal rector, he served parishes in Tahlequah and later at Pawhuska, where he died a year ago. His widow, Geri, who resides in San Mateo, Calif., has made the loan possible.

Workers race to complete 11,000 seat Mabee Center

Three hundred workers are racing to get the new Mabee Center ready by the completion deadline of October 1. Gathering the "loose ends" together and ironing out the scores of bugs to put the building in order, Manhattan Construction is working around-the-clock.

Cost of the building seating 11,000 for athletic events has steadily mounted and will exceed $11 million, university president Oral Roberts has said.

It was originally announced to cost $5.5 million, but building costs and additional facilities and equipment have been added.

"If we had announced an $11 million building it would have scared everyone, including me," said President Roberts.

Stacked inside are 9,000 square yards of carpeting which will be laid in the final days. Hundreds of lights must be put in place and tested. Large areas are to be sowed to grass and a few more parking lanes painted for the 3,000 vehicle spaces.

The computer controlled scoreboard and message center is yet to be installed. The control panel for the complicated stage with 27 lines of winches is in place, however, and most of the "bugs" have been removed.

The building is much more complex than it would appear. For one thing it has 250,000 square feet of floor space on four levels, with a maze of offices and facilities, ranging from concession stands, to dressing rooms.

Most of the major work has been finished. Seats are all in and four-foot wide escalators at the north and south ends of the building are ready except for final tuning. Each will carry 6,000 persons an hour up or down.

Tucked away on the first level are two full-sized practice courts for basketball and a handball court.

Large dressing room facilities are on the ground level and include four individual rooms for stars, three cast rooms, and two rooms to accommodate choruses and large groups. The latter are rimmed with lights and wash basins.

A VIP room for a very important star or dignitary is actually a suite. Adjoining is a sizable room which could serve as an office for the staff of the dignitary.

Nearby is an opening so a car could be driven virtually to the door. An adjoining concrete apron could serve as a heliport.

Billy Graham will be the first VIP to use the setup during the filming of the October "Contact" television special.

The coaching staff and athletic publicists have offices in the building.

The Titan Clubroom is large, designed for pre-game meals, buffets and other ORU groups.

There is an even larger room for reception, where as many as 1,000 could gather. The Titan Club and reception room will be available to off-campus groups such as civic clubs and church groups.

ORU team facilities include a training room complete with cold plunge, sauna and whirlpool bathing equipment. A team laundry is another facility.

Nearby are six double refreshment stands geared to high-speed service.

The press room will be equipped to handle 14 writers, with typing and telephone facilities. It can be easily expanded if the need should arise.

Television facilities are included and 200 candles of light en-

Final adjustments on the four-foot wide escalators (top) are being made in order to meet the October 1 completion deadline for the new ORU sports and entertainment complex. Each escalator will carry 6,000 persons an hour up or down. More than 9,000 square yards of carpeting (bottom) will be laid in the center during the final days.

Preservation Hall Band: sound of New Orleans

Preservation Hall Jazz Band is a happy, musical, enriching experience that makes it more than a concert. The world famous jazz band will appear here in a concert at 8 p.m. on September 25 in Zoppelt Auditorium. The band is on tour from its home in New Orleans where the members of the group all took part in the birth of our most American art form.

Each of the members of the Preservation Hall Jazz Bands has memories of the days when jazz, or jass as they spelled it at the turn of the century, was taking form and shape and becoming a separate kind of music. In fact, they were the people who added their names to Buddy Bolden, Louis Armstrong, King Oliver and Jelly Roll Morton in the history of an American art form that grew from many sources in the special culture that was New Orleans.

These are the people who made the history. But their vitality and youthful drive is still apparent in the singing, happy music of New Orleans and a concert today is full of the same spirit that made jazz the uninhibited music of the period of the first world war.

People from all over the world have made Preservation Hall at 720 St. Peter Street a priority on trips to New Orleans; it has become something like a pilgrimage. But the real pilgrims are the musicians who have been traveling the United States and the world to bring the true New Orleans jazz played by the people who have played it for 50 years in the Parishes around New Orleans.

The Preservation Hall Jazz Bands has been quietly taking its place among the leading American concert attractions for several years. Each year the tours get longer, the audiences get bigger and young and old Americans are finding a happy evening in a theatre or concert hall. The band members are not concerned with a message, they are bringing joy and sorrow in their stamps and blues. The line behind the band members as they lead a march through the hall at the end of the concert is testimony to the happiness that fills the hall when the band is there.

Admission to the concert is free with the student ID card.

Booters sweep tourney

by Gail Letterle

Last weekend, while most everything else continued normally at ORU, the soccer team found a new path for itself. The team couldn't have opened the season in finer fashion than to journey to Winfield, Kans., and return as champions of the St. John's Classic.

The Titans opened with their first game last Friday against Cloud County Community Junior College from Kansas, winning the first game of the tournament 3-1. Dub Ambrose initiated the scoring in the tourney with a goal near the end of the first half. Immediately in the second half the Thunderbirds of CCCJC rallied to erase the Titan lead with what turned up to be their only goal of the game. But before the third quarter had ended, the Titans held a comfortable 3-1 lead with two quick goals by Mitch De Zeeuw, one on a cross coming off the head of the right wing. Besides the strong offensive effort of the forward line, which has already scored more goals in three games than were scored all last year, the defense was deserving of tribute for the win as rookie goalie Ken Braaten had to handle the ball only three times.

In the second game Friday, the home team, St. John's, edged Concordia College from Nebraska, 2-1, to decide who would meet Oral Roberts in the championship.

Saturday, Oral Roberts destroyed the hometown crowd and St. John's, trimming the Eagles 3-2 to win the tournament. St. John's opened the game by scoring in the opening minutes of the game. Moments later, ORU was back in the game as a cross from left wing Phil Pascarella was accidentally booted in by a St. John defender. The Titans dominated control of the ball for most of the game and led 3-1 at the start of the final quarter, resulting from a score by Hap Gregg and Phil Pascarella's second tally of the game. The Titans were dragging only for a short period going into the fourth quarter when the Eagles threatened with one more score, and several more shots. But St. John's short rally was climaxed when lone goalie, Ken Braaten, had to defend on a penalty shot by the Eagles from twelve yards out. The shot, which would have tied the score, was well placed to the far side of the goal, but Braaten dived, pounced on the ball and pulled it in to save the game and give the team the lift it needed to command the remaining five minutes of the game. The Titan defensive unit put forth another fine effort to help the team pull out their third straight victory.

Tomorrow the booters will entertain Rockhurst College at 2 p.m. in their first home game of the season to be played on the new soccer field. Rockhurst will provide one of the toughest oppositions of the year for ORU. Rounding out the week's schedule will be a second home game Tuesday at 3 p.m. against Southwestern Oklahoma from Oklahoma City.

Fulbright program deadline approaches

The Institute of International Education has announced the official opening of the 1973-74 competition for grants for graduate study or research abroad and for professional training in the creative and performing arts.

Application forms and information for students currently enrolled at ORU may be obtained from the campus Fulbright Program Adviser Dr. Roy E. Hayden. The deadline for filing applications through the FPA is Oct. 1, 1972.

These grants, whose purpose is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and other countries through the exchange of persons, knowledge, and skills, are provided under the terms of the Mutual Education and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 (Fulbright-Hays Act) and by foreign governments, universities and private donors. Areas for which the best opportunity exists are Austria, Iceland, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Yugoslavia, and especially Turkey. It is expected that approximately 550 awards to 37 countries will be available for 1973-74.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application, who will hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent before the beginning date of the grant and, in most cases, be proficient in the language of the host country. Except for certain specific awards, candidates may not hold the Ph.D.

Creative and performing artists are not required to have a bachelor's degree, but they must have four years of professional study or equivalent experience. Social work applicants must have at least two years of professional experience after the Master of Social Work degree; candidates in medicine must have an M.D. at the time of application.

Selection is based on the academic and/or professional record of the applicant, the validity and feasibility of his proposed study plan, his language preparation and personal qualifications. Preference is given to candidates between 20 and 35 years of age who have not had prior opportunity for extended study or residence abroad.

Security changes role

Due to the increased number of students attending ORU, the security force has been increased to nine men and five dispatchers. Security protection is a round-the-clock operation at ORU with two men working each shift. A patrol car is also constantly cruising. The security force has the responsibility to patrol the campus, faculty housing, University Village, and the Oral Roberts Association building.

An improved alarm system has been installed at the entrance of the tunnel area to the LRC. The LRC also has a vast system of alarms to alert the security department.

The security officers are still required to carry a weapon at all times. The department has had cause to exercise its authority only in minor cases. The biggest problem will be directing traffic for activities held at the Mabee Center.

When asked about his job, Officer Don Terry stated, "I am here to assist and help, not persecute and harass. I think the security program is a great improvement, and one that the students will appreciate."

"All God's Children" is among country-western singer Charlie Pride's recent hit recordings. Charlie Pride and a host of entertainers will perform at this year's Tulsa State Fair.

Tulsa Fair offers exciting personalities

Fair time is here again, and this year's Tulsa State Fair and Exposition should be 'Fair Enough' for over 1,000,000 people expected this year.

Among the list of major attractions this year is the popular recording group, the Lettermen. They have been around a long time, and continue to please young and old alike with their unique blend of sound, choice of material, and arrangements. Always in demand for concerts, they somehow manage to sound as good live as on record, an accomplishment few groups can boast today. Their concerts include something for everyone, from their million seller recordings, to "oldies but goodies," to songs from hit musicals. Sharing the billing with the Lettermen will be B. J. Thomas. Most will remember him for his recording "Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head" from the Bacharach-David musical score of "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." Voted the "Top Male Vocalist of the Year" in 1970, his recordings have sold over 16 million records. The Lettermen—B. J. Thomas concert will be held in the newly remodeled Fairground Pavilion.

For Country-Western fans, Charley Pride has been booked for two shows in the pavilion. In the past 6 years, Pride has become one of the biggest-selling recording artists in the history of RCA records. He recently sang his hit recording, "All God's Children" at the Academy Awards Presentation. It was nominated for Best Song of 1971. In recent years, Ice Capades has played the entire 10 days of the Fair, but this year will be a five day run. Julie Lynn Holmes, one of the top U.S. Skating stars in the winter Olympics will be featured in this year's production, the 32nd edition of the Greatest Show on Ice.

General admission fair tickets may be purchased from the cashiers in the Business Office. Tickets purchased before the Fair begins are 50 cents each. Admission at the gate will be $1.00. Additional ticket information may be obtained by writing Tulsa State Fair, Box 4735, Tulsa, Okla. Final date for ordering tickets is 8 days prior to the performance desired.
