12-1-1972

Oracle (Dec 1, 1972)

Holy Spirit Research Center ORU Library

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalshowcase.oru.edu/oracle

Part of the Christian Denominations and Sects Commons, Christianity Commons, and the Higher Education Commons
Baroness von Trapp inspires audiences

by Mike McCabe

An article written about Baroness Maria von Tropp cannot be written like any other article. She is not like any other person—and our interview was unlike any either of us had ever had.

After she inspired all of us in chapel, and after she overwhelmed our women students with her "whole womanliness," she looked forward to nothing more than a nap in her motel room. She hadn't counted on having to deal with a story—hungry freshman reporter and his two more experienced, yet equally eager colleagues.

In two speeches to the students, she had answered all of my questions—all, even that wonderful surprise query I was sure that she had never been asked before. And the wisdom she'd shared—I not only was speechless (due to a definite lack of questions for my upcoming interviews), but I had writer's cramp from the notetaking.

"The meaning of the Holy Spirit working within her grasp is truly astounding. I want to spend a year, not an hour with her."

The things she shared with us should be printed; it is right for them to be read, reread, and understood.

To the students she said that the Spirit's tongues are given so that the Spirit can pray through us, not as a performance. It is prayer, most intimate prayer, not to be used in public unless called upon in a Christian meeting.

"To you, she said that Christians have for too long been bitter.

"To you, she spoke of the practicality of the Christian life. To me, she said, "God is simple."

I had been sitting in the back seat of a car, giving up all hope of an interview with the great and greatly tired Maria. I had just finished putting my very professional steno pad back in my coat pocket, when she suddenly turned, looked me in the eye, and said, "Jesus was simple, uncomplicated, uncomplicated."

My jaw dropped—I had expected a world-shattering comment or at least a quote, and she gave me common sense. This I already knew. Trying to fight off disappointment, I read one of four phase, the Imperials' concert in Mabee Center. Separate tickets for the banquet and concert, prepaid by the dorm residents' activity funds, can be obtained with L.D. cards in the Fireside room. Those going wishing to attend only the banquet or only the concert may do so. The tickets for the concert are for reserved seats and will be issued on a first come first served basis. Tickets for the banquet and concert for commuters will be $1 per person and for nonstudents $3 per person.

CIT gives ORU $5,000

A representative of the CIT Foundation, Inc., presented a challenge accreditation award of $5,000 to Oral Roberts University on November 27, 1972. Oral Roberts University was the 153rd institution of higher learning to be offered such a grant under the CIT program.

The grant was presented to Dr. Carl H. Hamilton, Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs of the university, by William T. O'Brien, field representative for The Tuition Plan, Inc.

To qualify for the grant, ORU had to raise a certain sum through donations from local business organizations and funds.

Walter S. Holmes, Jr., president of CIT Financial Corporation, and the CIT Foundation, reported that the total amount raised under the program from prior year's awards comes to more than $1,925,000, comprising $675,000 in CIT grants and $1,250,000 in matching funds contributed by local businesses and other sources.

The CIT Foundation's annual awards go to privately supported, four-year, nonsectarian liberal arts colleges and universities that were accredited or had accreditation restored in the previous year by one of the six recognized regional U. S. accrediting associations.

The CIT Foundation also sponsors scholarships and college grants through the National Merit Scholarship Program and provides support to the National Fund for Medical Education, the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students, the United States government's National Achievement Scholarships and the Independent Schools Talent Search Program. The Foundation was formed in 1955.

Dressed in her native Austrian costume, Baroness Maria von Tropp spoke to the student body at a recent chapel. The Baroness, whose life story was dramatized in the well-known musical, "The Sound of Music," shared from her spiritual experiences.

Baroness von Trapp speaks to students
Editorial

What's happened to high standards

What is happening to those values once held high in our American society? Is honesty becoming something of the past? Will the "new morality" totally abolish obligation to authority and traditional values?

It is at first humoring to think that any company with the business of selling college theses and term papers would attempt to advertise in any Oral Roberts University publication. However, in the semester's end nears, many of us probably wish that such a service was available. How much easier our lives would be if all we needed to do to complete that senior paper was to dictate the topic and length of our paper, enclose our check or money order, and wait for our order to be filled within two weeks. Just think how much time we would have to read our Bibles.

For us such a scheme is only wishful dreaming and strictly taboo. Yet, one can't help but wonder how many college newspapers did choose to accept the advertising for the company selling term papers that approached this newspaper several times? How many other companies of this type now serve our colleges? Is this form of academic dishonesty widespread?

A recent survey by the American Council on Education shows that 20 percent of all first semester freshmen admitted to either plagiaring or using a service such as Champion Term Papers to do their work paper. This survey was conducted across the nation at both state and church-supported campuses. The same survey also discovered that those students with lenient attitudes toward this practice shared similar attitudes about cheating in government and law.

Every week the Christian principles of this university are tested in some way or another by the "new ethics." If any publication on this campus should ever allow advertising that encourages cheating, I mean students the attempt of maintaining an honor system. May we of this institution stand strong to defend those values once held high in our society.

Dan Carlson

Capital punishment debated in forum

by Bette Burke

"Should capital punishment be reinstated?" was the topic of the third Communicator's Forum Monday, November 20. The speaker and interroger on the affirmative side were Nancy Myers and Don Minyard. On the negative side were Ladora Sanders, speaker, and Eugene Ral- phael, interroger.

Nancy Myers held the view that life imprisonment is cruel and unusual punishment, and that execution is "more humane." She stated that if capital punishment is reinstated, it would create a uniform application of punishment.

In opposition, Lodera Sanders stated that capital punishment is inhumane and that the knowl edge that the criminal has that he is going to die in this way is destructive to the mind and soul. She stated that capital punishment is "a legalized method of murder." Ladora said that the use of capital punishment has not decreased the crime rate in this country; also a person in prison for life is no longer a threat to society. A point she raised was that the concept of capital punishment is more pain ful than the reality.

After asking Ms. Myers several questions, Raphael said that capital punishment is really not a form of punishment. Minyard, after asking several questions of Ms. Sanders, claimed that the re alization of going to death after a man is paroled is high.

After these statements, the audience was allowed to participate in the debate. Some points that came up during the affirmative side were: a criminal becomes more decoy each time he commits a crime; Exodus 12:12, 14 states that if one man kills another, he must die; and society has a right to protect itself. Some points made for the negative side were: the criminal mind is not a normal, rational mind; as a Christian, how can we want to punish anyone by killing him—if you pass a death sentence, there is no chance to return. Also, they are using capital punishment because we are failing in our prison sys tem.

Fifty-two persons in the audience were on the affirmative side, and 20 were on the negative side. Throughout the forum there was no significant change of opinion.

Letters

Term papers and snow

MARCUT

EDITOR'S NOTE—Sometimes even the Oracle has to turn away advertising! Here is the correspondence from a company that wished to advertise their term paper service in this paper.

Attention: Robert McCafferty

We're sorry, Mr. McCafferty, that we cannot accept your advertising in the Oracle, our campus newspaper. We do not feel our students offer a market for a product, as they subscribe to the quaint notion that they do their own research and write their own term papers.

Yours truly,

Lynn M. Nichols

Faculty Adviser to the "Oracle"

Dear Lynn:

As the faculty adviser to The Oracle, you are doubtless aware of the object educational state which obtains at Oral Roberts University. In a way, Lynn, we're glad that you rejected our ad. It is not that we think the students at Oral Roberts are too bright to be interested in our product. Hardly. Instead, we doubt their ability to read at all. Even a person ad in a monkey house would be a waste.

But, listen, Lynn. Since you are on the faculty, you can read. Your letter is testi mony to your marginal abilities at writing. All faculty members, even at borderline institutions, feel the publish or perish pres sure.

We can solve these problems painlessly. Indeed, I will extend myself to the extent of viewing any at least not be that legalistic (or that much of a killjoy), I may suggest that those persons who are not to control themselves in the snow might be able to use each other's heads (or some other equally inanimate object as a target). Common sense (and common courtesy) dictates that complete strangers and innocent bystanders, whose eyes, teeth, etc., might be maimed should be ex cluded from future fun and games of this type. And that snow joke!

Robert McCafferty

Snow joke not funny

Dear editors,

My wife, who is not an ORU student, was recently subjected to what I hope is not a typical example of ORU 'humor.'

Since my wife wished to visit someone in Soise Mansion hall last Saturday night (the day it snowed, remember?) I parked the car in the east parking lot and waited while she went into the building. Upon her return, I noticed that her coat was splat tered with snow. As we left, she told me what had happened.

Apparently demented by the snow, a group of about a dozen young men—perhaps—were grouped near the top of the stairs to the twin-tower dorms, throwing snowballs at anyone attempting to climb the steps; in this case, my wife. She was struck by several snowballs, and I am not surprised. Apparently some of these young men had aim as bad as their man ner.

My wife was not the only target. All who came in range were likely to have "a ball," so to speak.

In some cities, striking a person with a snowball constitutes physical assault or breach of the peace. Which is not be that legalistic (or that much of a killjoy), I may suggest that those persons who are not to control themselves in the snow might be able to use each other's heads (or some other equally inanimate object as a target). Common sense (and common courtesy) dictates that complete strangers and innocent bystanders, whose eyes, teeth, etc., might be maimed should be ex cluded from future fun and games of this type. And that snow joke!

Robert McCafferty

Oracle policy

The ORACLE solicits copy from all students with the urge to put all thoughts on paper, in either letter or art form. All copy must be in our bounds by noon on the Monday preceding publication. For formal style, double-spaced, and signed. However, we will withhold any name on request.

Senate Soundings

Senate structures AAES

This column does not represent the opinion of the Oracle stuff, the Student Senate, the Christian family body as a whole. It is merely a student's view of Senate and how it works.

In its November 20 meeting, Student Senate passed a proposal which encourages the creation of formal structure for the American Association of Educated Students (AAES) on the ORU campus. The proposal, submitted by Larry Jones, acting campus coordinator for AAES, structures the group into two committees. The committee will consist of a Senate-appointed chairman and a secretary, business man ager, public relations director, and five ad hoc members. These persons will also be approved by Senate. All members of the committee will be named from the chairman.
The proposal to the committee include the following: to receive and vote on the status of the regional and national offices of AAES, to refer all AAES programs and materials to the Senate, to request and ad minister those programs which no other body is equipped to handle, to correspond regularly with the regional and national offices, to nominate fifteen supreme approval representatives of the Associated Student Body at the regional and national conventions and workshops, and to obtain from the Senate its position on issues to be discussed at the national convention.

Senate tabled a motion to loan $500 to the Student Senate. Expenses involved in sponsoring a talent show next semester. The money would be used primarily to buy radio and television advertising for the event which will be held in Mabee Center.

Since Senate has decided this year to use proper parliamentary procedures following Robert's Rules of Order, it might be a good idea for the senators and other officials to familiarize themselves with those rules. Senate parliamentarians can and often do use some strategies. Our own par lamentarian is masterful; his knowledge has not been added amusing as Senate takes on the as pe of a three-ring circus where nobody knows or can keep track of what's going on.

Cindy Davis

Fall seminar held Dec. 7-10

The ORU fall Laymen's Seminar will be held December 7-10 with the theme "The Purpose and Power of Prayer" in Mayer Center. One thousand lay men from all over the country and the world will be here to share and grow in their faith.

Students are welcome to at tend all meetings scheduled for the Laymen's Seminar in Mayer Center. Schedules of the seminar will be posted in the dorms.

Guests for the first time will be able to enjoy recreation in the center thereby avoiding crowding in the dormitories. Students will be staying in the dorms and Trade Winds Motel.
Germans regard school seriously

by Fessah Alwar

"German people have other things to do besides drinking beer," says Ann Bittlinger from the Southern German state of Bavaria.

The community where Ann lives consists of two villages, one Lutheran and one Catholic, with a small hill separating them. On the hill is found one of the most recently built荼. Ann's home is located in the Lutheran village, which has about 200 inhabitants.

According to Ann, soccer is the "sport" in Germany and in the school's free time playing soccer, while the girls enjoy watching. The youth in Germany especially like American music.

Ann came to the United States in August of 1971 with her family traveling 10 days by sea. Her family came to live in Minnesota while her father did some research in an ecclesiastical center. Her research involved study on the charismatic movement and working with Larry Christiansen and Rod Williams. Before she came to ORU, Ann attended a high school in Minnesota for one year.

"I came to ORU for a Youth Seminar last year and I liked it very much. So I applied and after much prayer I was accepted. I now ORU very much, but I have a hard time adjusting to superficial conversations and greetings."

"For the German people words mean much. We don't say things we don't mean. I strongly believe that every American Christian should develop this trait in his life."

Private schools organize group

An organization has been formed by private colleges and universities in Oklahoma. The Oklahoma Association of Independent Colleges and Universities represents 11 schools, which account for 18 percent of Oklahoma's college enrollment.

Schools in the new organization include Oral Roberts University, Bacon, Bartlesville Wesley, Bethany Nazarene, Oklahoma Christian, Oklahoma Southern Junior College, Oklahoma Christian, Oklahoma Christian, Oklahoma Christian, Oklahoma City University, Phillips University, St. Gregory's College and the University of Tulsa.

Dr. William G. Tanner, president of Oklahoma Baptist University, has been selected as its first president.

December 1, 1972, THE ORACLE—Page 3

Christmas candlelight choir concert

A candlelight concert will be presented by the music department in Mabee Center on Monday, December 10, at 8 p.m. Participating in the traditional Christmas program will be the Concert Choir directed by Tony Nastarini, the 70-piece University Orchestra directed by Donald Robinson, and the 140-voice University Choir directed by Har- old Carpenter.

The concert will begin with a candlelight procession of the 200 singers, symbolic of the coming of the "Light of Christ" into the world. It will end with the choir resewing through the darkness, hall, symbolic of the taking of the Light of Christ to all the world.

Mr. Carpenter will direct. The program will include ex- cepts from Handel's Messiah and selections from among the most popular Christmas songs.

There will be a Carol Sig for audience participation.

Free reserved tickets may be obtained by calling 749-5761, or by stopping by the Carson Attrac- tions Office in Mabee Center.

Oregon group builds housing

A large apartment development has been planned near University Village, south of Oral Roberts University by a group from Fort Worth.

The city permit office has asked to approve plans for 136 units at 2755 E. 88th St., to be built by Lewis Avenue In- vestments, Inc. of $3,250,000.

This would be the first of several ex- tremely complex to be built in the area by the same group.

The apartments would be on 50 acres of land acquired from Marshall Nash, Tulsa investor. The development would have limited frontage on Lewis, but widens as it extends eastward to Delaware Avenue.

Maria inspires audiences

(Continued from page 1)

my friends write it down as a quote on his pad, and smiled sweetly.

How easy it is to suddenly overlook pure gold when look- ing for gold-lined phrases.

After being jousted by the speech, she declared, "how clever," a statement I considered too cute for my use and put my pen away.

Then she began to ask about our university and President Roberts's ministry, and I began to feel as if I were with another tourist, trying to duck having my picture in front of the Prayer Tower.

She was asked about her book fast try me, as I was still smil- ing and (gaping) and she ex- plained that it is called When the Lord Was a Carpenter. It stresses her research into Christ's life on earth day to day and His humor and joy with living. I was about to hint my desire for an autographed copy, when one of the elders asked about her chil- dren. She has four unmarried, and the youngest is thirty. These, I felt, were pleasant enough facts, but not for Oral use. I was still attempting to speak instead of just nodding and smiling stupidly. Of the ladies in the car asked about summer jobs for stu- dents at the Trapp family lodge, but I could see that the barren- ness was not about to employ this strongly staring, mute fresh- man.

December 1, 1972

Volume 8, Number 11

7777 south Lewis

tulsa, oklahoma 74105

Co-Editors —— Dan Carlton

Associate Editor —— Ken Irby

Feature Editor —— Renee Coffield

Circulation —— Debbie Niederkorn

Business Manager —— Gary Tempko

Advisor —— Lynn M. Nichols

Official organ of the Oral Roberts University Student body published every Friday, Office hours are 1-5 p.m. in the Student Union, Monday-Friday. Ph. 743-6161, ext. 314. Subscription rate: $3.00 per semester.

Maria loves flowers

We went to buy flowers for her room. Yellow carnations are her favorites, a fact I'll long re- member.

I also remember that she sug- gested that our driver get a little more daring when we waited five minutes to make a turn. (Our driver became so daring that we went the wrong way down a one way street.) As we reached the flower store, there was much general praising of the Lord and Maria bought several beautiful yellow flowers.

It was surely a disappointment to me at that time. I remem- bered the assignment of the story —my jumping and begging for it —and winning (I turned down Nixon for von Trapp). I re-
442. ext.

We wish to manufacture jewelry

For each of you.

Ticket prices

Reduced $.75 & $.50.

In classics

Tulsa, when Annie came to Tulsa to visit the mother of her friend.

"We tried the specials and ended up staying the whole summer (we were in the camper). Then we went to a job agency and went over to OKU, although I really didn't know much about it."

Going into her thirtieth year now as secretary for Brother Bob, Annie, who was brought up in a convent outside London by nuns, believes she had put her here to give her a second chance. "I'd grown up with religion all my life and it never meant anything to me so I never brought it. Catholics weren't the way to bring me to the Lord because I just didn't understand it."

I threw out that whole concept. But Brother Bob took me step by step and showed me not in order to accept you had to be drawn to it."

Annie does not label her job ordinary, but unique. "The whole concept of the business world is to go together, but your main idea is to earn money; yet the idea of helping people out in the business world doesn't really occur to you. You might dread it if it was part of your nature, but you wouldn't be consciously, whenever you sit here you know that's what you're here for. Anyone coming in that door needing help, you know you're here to give it to him. It becomes a way of life for you."

On the other hand (not third finger, left), we have the fourth floor. Twin Tower men who,

(Continued on page 5)

by Rachel Wagner

Twelve years ago Annie (An

nie) Lee and her husband, Bob,

in England, to the United States, having never heard of Okla-more. Oral Roberts. Little did Annie know what the future held for her.

Returning in New York upon arrival, Annie began working for the cheerful Phyllis Petersen Lo.

Through some of her acquaintances

there from Bartlesville, Okla., she became acquainted with the name of Oral Roberts, but mostly through jokes. Kennaqua Florida one summer, the Lee

came to Tulsa to visit the mother

of her friend.

"We tried the specials and ended up staying the whole summer (we were in the camper). Then we went to a job agency and went over to OKU, although I really didn't know much about it."

Going into her thirtieth year now as secretary for Brother Bob, Annie, who was brought up in a convent outside London by nuns, believes she had put her here to give her a second chance. "I'd grown up with religion all my life and it never meant anything to me so I never brought it. Catholics weren't the way to bring me to the Lord because I just didn't understand it."

I threw out that whole concept. But Brother Bob took me step by step and showed me not in order to accept you had to be drawn to it."

Annie does not label her job ordinary, but unique. "The whole concept of the business world is to go together, but your main idea is to earn money; yet the idea of helping people out in the business world doesn't really occur to you. You might dread it if it was part of your nature, but you wouldn't be consciously, whenever you sit here you know that's what you're here for. Anyone coming in that door needing help, you know you're here to give it to him. It becomes a way of life for you."

On the other hand (not third finger, left), we have the fourth floor. Twin Tower men who,

(Continued on page 5)

by Rachel Wagner

Twelve years ago Annie (An

nie) Lee and her husband, Bob,

in England, to the United States, having never heard of Okla-

more. Oral Roberts. Little did Annie know what the future held for her.

Returning in New York upon arrival, Annie began working for the cheerful Phyllis Petersen Lo.

Through some of her acquaintances

there from Bartlesville, Okla., she became acquainted with the name of Oral Roberts, but mostly through jokes. Kennaqua Florida one summer, the Lee

came to Tulsa to visit the mother

of her friend.

"We tried the specials and ended up staying the whole summer (we were in the camper). Then we went to a job agency and went over to OKU, although I really didn't know much about it."

Going into her thirtieth year now as secretary for Brother Bob, Annie, who was brought up in a convent outside London by nuns, believes she had put her here to give her a second chance. "I'd grown up with religion all my life and it never meant anything to me so I never brought it. Catholics weren't the way to bring me to the Lord because I just didn't understand it."

I threw out that whole concept. But Brother Bob took me step by step and showed me not in order to accept you had to be drawn to it."

Annie does not label her job ordinary, but unique. "The whole concept of the business world is to go together, but your main idea is to earn money; yet the idea of helping people out in the business world doesn't really occur to you. You might dread it if it was part of your nature, but you wouldn't be consciously, whenever you sit here you know that's what you're here for. Anyone coming in that door needing help, you know you're here to give it to him. It becomes a way of life for you."

On the other hand (not third finger, left), we have the fourth floor. Twin Tower men who,

(Continued on page 5)
Titan talk...

by Vickie Morgan

A yearly hi, blight for every student is just about upon us. For some students seeing the running and gunning Titans will be a totally new and delightful experience. For those who have seen the Titans previously, prepare yourselves—they are better than ever this year!

Next Monday night, December 4, the ORU Titans will open their 72-73 season against the Badgers of the University of Wisconsin at Madison. Led by 6-5 Lom Howard, who averaged 16.4 points per game last season, the Badgers fell last week to UCLA.

Kim and Kerry Hughes, 6-11 twin juniors, will present two big threats for the Titan front line. Kim averaged 11.7 points and 11.5 rebounds per game while Kerry nabbed 7.1 rebounds. A big factor the Titans will have to keep in mind is 6-10 Kessem Grimes, a sophomore.

Wednesday night’s doubleheader has been dubbed “Henry P. Ida Night” to honor the former Oklahoma State University basketball coach. Texas A&M will clash with ORU in the first contest and ORU will meet Idaho State in the 9 p.m. contest.

Idaho State, under former Tulsa University assistant coach Jim Killingsworth, is not only returning the entire starting lineup but also the top three reserves off last year’s team which finished 14-12. The Bengals are led by 6-9 Ev Fopma, who averaged 22.3 points last year with 55 percent accuracy. Fopma may move from center to forward this year.

The Titans have been preparing for the season opener with excursions to Pryor, Miami, and Muskogee where they played intrasquad games. Their preparation culminated in last night’s annual Blue-White game.

For those who have been wondering (and there seem to be several of you out there), the following definition is for you. A “red-shirted” player is one who practices with the team and receives financial aid while being ineligible to play in the games scheduled for one season. There are various reasons for this, one being that the player is given an extra year of eligibility to improve his basketball prowess or his academic status. The three Titan “red-shirted” players this season are 6-3 sophomore Kenny Cooper, 6-7 Duane Fox, a junior transfer from Illinois State, and 6-5 sophomore Sam McCants.

The Titans were surprised to learn last week that the team is ranked fourth by “Sports Illustrated” behind UCLA, Florida State, and Maryland! That was a pretty nice Thanksgiving surprise!

A total of three home games will be played before we go home for the Christmas holidays. I want to urge each and everyone of the ORU community to get tickets for these games so that our Titans can see just how much we do appreciate and support them. Go ’em, Titans!

---

Students compete in ‘lifting tourney

Full intramural weightlifting championships were held November 20, with seven men competing. Although the number of competitors was small, the level of competition was higher than that of past intramural meets; all the men entered turned in credible performances.

The meet was run by the Hoffman Formula method which uses a mathematical co-efficient to compare the actual total weight lifted with the lifter’s bodyweight. In this way, men of unequal bodyweight can compete fairly.

The meet was split into two classes, a light class and a heavy class. The lifts were given in each class, and everyone who entered received an ORU weightlifting shirt.

In the light class, Phil Der- stine, a bodyweight of 143, took first place with efforts of 225 in the bench press; 265 in the squat; and 330 in the dead lift; for a total of 845, and a Hoffman Formula of 698.88.

Todd Burke grabbed second place with efforts of 195, bodyweight press; 275 squat; and 375 dead lift. These lifts gave Todd a total of 845; but because of his high bodyweight, his Hoffman Formula was 682.76, earning him second place.

Hubert Gardner, at a bodyweight of 157, put together lifts of 190, 290, and 350 for a total of 830 and a Hoffman Formula rating of 646.57.

John Carlson rounded out the light division by coping fourth with efforts of 135, 225 and 330, for a total of 690, and a Hoffman co-efficient of 565.8.

In the heavy division, Gary Curver put together some excellent lifts and ran away with first place. Curver, who tipped the scales at 190, put together efforts of 305 in the bench press; 330 in the squat; and 435 in the dead lift, to total a fine 1070; which gave him a Hoffman co-efficient of 742.98. All of Car-ver’s lifts were done with ease, and knowledgeable onlookers felt he could have done much more if pressed by his opponents.

Ed Guthmann, who continues to improve with each meet, took second place with efforts of 225, 300, and 400, for a good 900 total. Ed’s bodyweight of 166 made this a 694.68 Hoffman Formula.

Frank Sullivan, at a bodyweight of 167, took third with lifts of 230, 260, and 355, which gave him a total of 845, and a Hoffman Formula of 644.73.

The meet was run by Coach Jack Johnson with assistants from the Tulsa area. No date for the next weightlifting contest has been set.

---

Procedure explained

Attached to this is a list of the rules you should follow when attending games at ORU. It is not a difficult task, but one that is necessary to avoid problems.

---

Actually, it isn’t as difficult as it seems. Even an ORU student can order tickets at the Titan play. No, getting in isn’t the game, but there are a few rules to follow.

Activity cards, complete with 16 punch cards for the 1972-73 basketball season, and 10 more punch cards for other events, covered by the activity fee, are issued by each student’s respective dean. With this activity card and his I.D. card the student can obtain for his own use, free of charge, a Titan ticket. For half price, the student may purchase an activity ticket for a date or spouse, and for the full price he may purchase tickets in the same section for his family, if they live outside of Tulsa.

Although tickets have seat numbers on them and appear to be reserved seats, students may sit anywhere in sections N, P, Q, and R. Tickets in sections NN, PP, QQ, and RR are for reserved seats only and these tickets will be issued to students for the overflow after tickets for the other 1,218 seats are exhausted.

Tickets may be obtained now with students’ activity cards and I.D. of at Carston Attractions for the first three games. These tick-ets, along with the student’s I.D. are to be presented at the entrance for each game.

NCTE—No student tickets will be issued on chapel days until after chapel hour.

---

Figlet’s Finds

(Continued from page 4)

after counting all the engagement rings vowed to “stand fast” and “claim” Psalm 91:7; “A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee.”

The award for the worst joke of the week goes to roommates on Fifth Floor, Susan Finan. “We havent had dates so far, we decided to double with Ben Gay and Dr. Pepper!”

Most of us gobbled down some turkey during Thanksgiving, but some were left out, like Duane Bacon, from New Zealand, who learned something new. Mary was offered “Cold Duck” with her meal, and found out it was not a substitute for turkey!
Music

JUNIOR RECITAL: David Koch (organ), December 1, 8 p.m., Boston Avenue Methodist Church.

JUNIOR RECITAL: Lowell Burch (trumpet) and Vicki Stump (piano), December 5, 11 a.m., Timko-Barton Recital Hall.

FACULTY RECITAL: Andrzej Wasowski (piano), December 7, 8 p.m., Timko-Barton Hall.

Meetings

BOARD OF REGENTS: Annual meeting, December 2-5.

SPECIAL CHAPEL: Dedication of Graham Symphony Hall and Johnston Theatre, December 4, 11 a.m., Mabee Center.

DEDICATION: Mabee Center, December 4, 7:10 p.m.

SEMINAR: Layneman's Seminar, December 7-10, Mabee Center.

CHAPEL: President Oral Roberts, December 6, 11 a.m. Mabee Center.

CHAPEL: December 8, cancelled.

PARTY: Music Department Christmas Party, December 11, following departmental recital, Timko-Barton Lobby.

Tests

UNDERGRADUATE RECORD EXAMS AND SENIOR TESTS: December 1-2.

UNDERGRADUATE RECORD EXAMS: December 9.

Etc.

YEARBOOK PORTRAITS: December 4-8, 11 a.m.-5 p.m., 6 p.m.-9 p.m., Room 22 of the SUB, one week only, class dress is appropriate.

Survey shows dissatisfaction

Majority favor Frosh Week

The purpose of FEEDBACK is to provide a basis for better interpersonal understanding by reporting the concerns of those with specific FEEDBACK contacts. It is the hope of this committee that these reports will help members of the campus community develop a better understanding of who they are in relationship to the natural and supernatural worlds around them. While these reports do offer a partial basis for decisions by students, faculty, and administrative personnel, they are not intended to be the final word in any decision.

FEEDBACK'S survey on the revamped version of Frosh Week received many interesting and varied results.

Of the 193 students surveyed, the "overwhelming majority, 164 -29 were in favor of some form of Frosh Week." The majority expressed some sort of dissatisfaction with the Frosh Week held this semester. The freshman class itself was "slightly" more in favor of Frosh Week than were the upperclassmen.

The response toward the slave system was 99 in favor, 56 opposed, and 9 with no opinion. The selling of slaves and the kangaroo court, 98-56-10, held the majority vote while there was "considerable hostility for the slave system and kangaroo court systems" by those who did not oppose the view.

The dissatisfaction of this year's Frosh Week was rated on a 1-5 scale, "one" being very unsatisfactory and "five" being very satisfactory. The majority gave the response of being unsatisfied with 100 giving responses of less than the number three while 22 gave responses of more than the number three.

About one-fourth of the students polled gave suggestions when asked for future Frosh Week legislation. Next week, the Oracle will supplement this article with those suggestions.

Music department offers courses for non-majors

Two courses for the second semester designed for persons not majoring in music are being offered next semester. It is expected that interest in these courses will extend beyond the campus to the Tulsa community generally.

One of these courses, Music 3003, "Music Appreciation," will be taught by Franco Autori, to which he brings special qualifications. The class will meet three times a week, at 2:10 p.m., on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and carries three hours of credit. It is open to anyone, without pre-requisites, and may be angaged for credit by permission of the professor.

The other course, Music 0221, is entitled "The Music of Black America." Dr. E. V. Ely, n. Davis will direct this course of the black man in American history and in contemporary society. It will discuss the historical aspects of this music, show its influence on both classical and popular contemporary music, and teach many fundamentals of music as the need is evidenced, and also vocal skills. A laboratory choir will be selected from members of the class to perform various selections from the repertoire of the black man's music.

The class will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 4:15 to 5:30 p.m., and will offer one credit.