ORAL ROBERTS UNIVERSITY, TULSA, OKLAHOMA

APRIL 27, 1973

Regent Pat Boone will be featured speaker at Baccalaureate service scheduled for 10:30 a.m. May 6.

Wilbur Mills and Pat Boone to speak for graduation

The Honorable Wilbur D. Mills, Congressman from the Second District, Arkansas, will be the commencement speaker on May 6, according to President Oral Roberts. Exercises in which more than 200 graduating seniors will receive diplomas will be held in Mabee Center at 2:30 p.m. Pat Boone, noted throughout the world for his Christian witness, will address the Baccalaureate Service scheduled for 10:30 a.m. that day.

Mills will receive the Doctor of Laws degree from ORU during Commencement Exercises. The Doctor of Divinity will be conferred upon Rev. Ralph Wilkerson, of Anaheim, Calif., and Rev. Charles E. Blair, of Denver, Colo. The Honorable Noel Evans, of London, England, will receive the Doctor of Letters, while Rev. Rex Hubbard, of Akron, Ohio, will receive the Doctor of Humane Letters.

Seniors honored at Chapel

In connection with graduation activities, seniors were recognized at the Honor Awards Assembly held in Mabee Center April 13. President Roberts and Dr. Hamilton presented the honor cards signifying the highest honors to the following graduating seniors: Summa Cum Laude—Nancy Eland, Gary Klingsporn, Vikki Mikysa, and Susan

A. Smith; Magna Cum Laude—Timothy Brumit, Rudolph Cerullo, Frank DeLost, Johnny Jones, Debra Krapf, Don P. Mosser, Sharon R. Perry, Francis M. Rains, Clinton Sparks, Stephen P. Stockley, and Timothy J. Thompson; Magna Cum Laude—Thomas R. Albin, Karen L. Brant, Michael C. Brown, John C. Burke, Grady Chaney, Roberta Cole, Alex Corbitt, Jean Gough, Kenneth Holmgren, Kathy Maggill, Mary A. Phillips, Robert Rhodes, Linda Rodriguez, William Scott, and Kathy E. Walker.

Other seniors honored were Danny Farmer, who received the John Philip Sousa Outstanding Bandsman Award, and Susan Eskridge, who received the Green Country Art Association Award. These were presented by Gene Eland, chairman of the Fine Arts Department.

J. Otis Winters, president of the Educational Development Corporation of Tulsa, presented his company's scholarship award to Stan Weir.

The 1972-73 Outstanding College Athletes of America award winners, Dave Barr and Greg Davis, were announced by Dr. Hamilton.

Also revealed at the Honors Assembly were the winners of the ORU Women's Club Scholarships to ORU women who will continue their studies at the University next year. They are: Kathleen Blake, Bonita Casimere, Ruth Figi, Judy Hammond, Jaynee Handelsman, Dixie Keith, Fleta Lander, Yoshiko Murasawa, and Leola Walter.

The Outstanding Faculty Member of the Year award went to Dr. Roy E. Hayden, professor of Biblical Literature. Dr. Hayden received a cash award and will have the honor of serving as Faculty Marshal of the Academic Processions in the commencement exercises.

The Honor Awards Assembly was sponsored by the Honor Society. DeLois Sadler, president of the society, introduced the program.

All American rating

Oracle draws praise

The Associated Collegiate Press of the University of Minnesota School of Journalism last week named the Oracle "All American," its highest rating, in its assessments for the fall 1972 semester. The "All American" rating included marks of distinction in four of the five areas judged. The Oracle, rated with other universities its size, was commended for fine photography and features, as well as "clear and concise" newswriting. The ACP pointed out the need for more effective editorials and improved coverage of girls' intramurals.

The Oracle was also quite successful at the Oklahoma Collegiate Press Association's Awards Banquet last week. Associate Editor Ken Irby was named outstanding editorialist for his commentary on Library Quietness. Danee Helvey received second place for sports photography. Third-place awards went to Rachel Wagner for her feature "ORU Marriage and Divorce," and Eugene Lynn for feature photography.

In addition, the Association elected Renee Colwill as secretary for 1973-74. The election was clinched when the representative from Bethany Nazarene College bellowed, "We cast our vote for the cute little blonde from Oral Roberts!" Editor Dan Carlson was edged in the race for the presidency by one vote by a student from Oklahoma Baptist University.

Also, staff member Mike Henry was recently named as one of seven winners in the Logos Journal Charismatic Writers Contest. Mike will fly to Newark, New Jersey, for the Charismatic Writers Workshop on May 29 as a guest of Logos.

Klingsporn is honored

Senior Gary W. Klingsporn was named to the Honorable Mention list of applicants for the Danforth Fellowship for College Teaching Careers 1973-74, Dr. Roy Hayden, Liaison Officer of the Danforth Foundation, announced recently. Approximately one-fifth of the 1,800 applicants reached the interview stage.

According to Dr. Hayden, "The ORU faculty committee is pleased that ORU has several students of the high caliber necessary to compete for the Danforth Fellowship. We had a hard time narrowing our nominees down to the two we were allowed to submit. Our final nominees were Mr. Gary W. Klingsporn and Miss Nancy Eland, both of whom will be graduating Summa Cum Laude.

Volunteers, over 280, came to the HRC Friday, April 13, for Blood Donor Day at ORU. Twice as much blood as usual was given. About 230 pints of blood were donated by students, faculty, and other brave, humanitarian souls.

Book reviews

Durasoff releases two new books

by harry townsend

Dr. Steve Durasoff, Professor of Religious Education at ORU, has recently released his newest book, entitled Pentecost Behind the Iron Curtain.

In the book published by Logos International, Dr. Durasoff tells about his many experiences during his travels behind the Iron Curtain. He explains how God has opened up doors for his charismatic ministry to liefs. Yet miraculously their faith is strengthening and spreading. A dove has penetrated the Iron Curtain, and now, through the eyes and ears of a man who has prayed, shared, and preached there, we can know what is really happening by the power of the Holy Spirit.

Pentecost Behind the Iron Curtain, in paperback edition, is on sale in the campus store for $1.50.

the Soviet people, particularly in the Evangelical and Pentecostal churches. As part of the World Action teams Dr. Durasoff has led to the Soviet Union, I have seen his love and compassion for the Soviet people. He includes in his book some reactions of the World Action team members to their ministry in the Soviet Union.

But not only does this book relate personal experiences, it also gives some Pentecostal history of the Soviet Union, as well as discussing the condition of believers today in that country and its Communist-bloc nations. At this moment, 500,000 charismatic Christians in Russia are being persecuted because of their be-

by margaret crider

Prentice-Hall has recently released Bright Wind of the Spirit—Pentecostalism Today, Dr. Steve Durasoff's second new book.

Dr. Harold Paul, Chairman of the Department of Social Sciences, says a major strength of Bright Wind of the Spirit is that it is aimed at the layman rather than the historian. He says Dr. Durasoff has handled the outpouring of the Holy Spirit in a "well-written, objective, and appreciative manner. He recognizes the weaknesses but endeavors to be fair and Christian in his evaluation of this current and historical event."

Dr. Paul feels Durasoff has discussed President Roberts' ministry, particularly his change to the United Methodist Church, in a manner that promotes greater understanding. The book also contains chapters on the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship International, Protestant Neo-Pentecostals, and Catholic Pentecostals. "The significance of these chapters is their immediate importance and their unequal treatment by authors in the past."

Durasoff is one of the leading authorities on the Pentecostal movement in the Iron Curtain countries. "The book contains an illuminating section on Pentecost there as well."

Dr. Paul pointed out that it is an honor to have a prestigious publisher such as Prentice-Hall publish a work by one of ORU's professors. The book is carefully documented and contains a brief but significant bibliography. Betty Ford, an ORU graduate, writes that many of her 11th-grade students are using Bright Wind of the Spirit in their research papers.

Dr. Lee Belford, Chairman of the Department of Religious Education, Graduate School of New York University, says "Bright Wind of the Spirit is excellent, covering a wide spectrum with proper balance and perceptive insights, and written with clarity."

This book is available in hardback edition in the campus store for $6.95.

EDITORIAL

Still miles to go

Congratulations are in order to the Oracle staff and their advisor for the national "All-American" rating and on an excellent showing at the Oklahoma Collegiate Press Association conference. Yet, much of the credit for all these awards belongs to our readers for inspiring the writers and encouraging the editors by noticing improvements in the publication quality.

For this year's dedicated staff, these awards made the long and irregular hours of work worthwhile. However, just because we are now an "All-American" newspaper, does not mean there is not room for improvement.

We have seen many of our dreams fulfilled this semester with the new office facilities and the high ratings. But we are still dreaming of a day when ORU will offer a journalism major or minor. We are probably the only "All-American" newspaper in the country without a journalism department.

We've come a long way, students, but we are the first to admit we have miles to go.

Senators pass proposed budget

by dave markley
ASB President

April 9-13 Student Senate co-sponsored a campus cleanup which proved successful, despite snow on the opening day. Seventeen students collectively contributed over 50 hours of work, clearing the campus of over 1/2 ton of trash. Senate wants to especially thank those of you who took time to make our campus look a lot better.

In our last meeting the new senators passed the proposed 1973-74 Student Senate Budget of close to $100,000 based on 1,800 students. (See box for proposed budget.)

All allocations are subject to the continuing review of the budget committee under the chairmanship of ASB Treasurer Jim Haase. Also, all allocations are placed on a total rather than a percentage basis, to give senate more flexibility in the use of your $50 student activity fee. If you have any criticisms or objections to this budget write them down and deposit them in our suggestion box in the cafeteria.

Senate is currently preparing a list of all lost and found items, now being held in security and it will be posted for your convenience. All items not claimed by the last day of school will be donated to charity in Tulsa.

As the end of school approaches, let's think beyond the ends of our noses and give next year consideration this summer. Write down problems and ideas, and send them to your representatives. You'll find their addresses in Who's Where.

To whom it may concern:

On April 1, I was a passenger on Delta flight 814 from San Francisco to Dallas. Seated in front of me were some boys I believe are students at ORU. Mistakenly one of us exchanged coats. I have a man's Misty Harbor zip front white 3/4 length jacket and he has my white full length London Fog ladies coat. I would gladly pay postage and a small reward for its return.

Sincerely,

This rustic bridge on a country road
If it could speak what stories could it tell
And what could we learn from its history.
Many people have passed this way
Thankful for the security it afforded,
Trusting in it to bear them across the waters.
On the outside rust may be gathering
But within there is an inner strength
That time only serves to harden.
Its every piece is functional.
Without each one it could not stand.
Its beauty is in its strength.
Its strength is in its design.
Its design is of its builder.
The lessons learned from this bridge of the past . . .
Should guide us on the pathways of our future.

ORU students clean up in Swampstomper contest

by ruth figi

Sarah Cynthia Sylvia Stout may not carry her garbage out (drippy ends of ice cream cones, bacon rinds, and brown bananas) but there are some 17 ORU students who spent 57 1/2 hours on campus doing just that.

Monday through Friday, April 9-13, 17 ecologically-minded young men and women rolled up their sleeves, took off their shoes, and waded in and around Fred Creek and other areas of the University grounds handpicking a total of 1,019 1/2 pounds of litter. John Carlton was the chief collector with a grand total of 356 pounds (yuk!) which took him 7 1/2 hours to gather in.

Girls clean up

The Clean-Up week was co-sponsored by the new Student Senate and Swampstompers, the Eco-Action Club.

"Second place went to a girl, we're proud to announce," said David Markley, Swampstompers President. "Her name is Janet Bolz. She picked up 192 1/2 pounds and closely following her was Pam Buckner, with 141 1/2 pounds of garbage. All of these people should be commended on their work. The top two students with the most trash received a free steak dinner."

Odd trash is stashed

What type of garbage was most prevalent? "Aluminum cans by far," said Markley. "We also found the top to a bikini, a 'For Sale' sign for land down at 41st and Peoria, and an old tire.

"We need to have a strong environmental awareness at ORU," stated Markley. "And an environmental conscience. I feel our clean-up week was a success, but I wish there could have been more people helping. We plan on having Earth Week each Spring."

Students volunteered their hours for trash pickup, but a Swampstomper jacket is awarded for hours totaling 10 or more.

"As soon as they finished collecting," David remarked, "there was new trash accumulating. By now, I would estimate there are thousands of pounds of garbage out there waiting for us."

Seventeen industrious, ecology-minded students hauled in 1,019 1/2 pounds of litter last week in the clean-up campaign cosponsored by the new Student Senate and the Swampstompers.

Titans nip Sooners; lose to Arkansas

The ORU Titan tennis team won five of six singles matches Monday, then held off a late Oklahoma surge to defeat the Sooners, 5-4, at Norman.

Number one man Erik Ulleberg rallied after dropping the first set to opponent Barr Baynton to win 5-7, 6-3, 6-3. Also winning singles matches were Ubaldo Scanagatta, Mario Pakozdi, Subir Mukerjea, and Mladen Tonicic. At this point in the season, Mukerjea has the best won-loss percentage of all the Titan netters.

ORU did not fare at all well in the doubles, which had been their strongpoint this season. Against OU, the teams of Scanagatta-Mukerjea, Ulleberg-Puigmiguel and Pakozdi-Tonicic were all defeated.

Once again on Tuesday, failure to win in the doubles caused the Titans to lose a closely fought battle at Arkansas, 5-4. ORU had built a solid 4-2 lead in the singles only to have the Razorbacks sweep the doubles and win the match.

The Titans now stand at 19-5 for the season. ORU will be on home clay tomorrow as they face arch-rival Tulsa in what should be a well contested match. Then next week the Titans will host the Oral Roberts University team tournament. It will get under way Thursday and the field will include Oklahoma City U., West Texas State, NE Louisiana, Tulsa, OSU, SW Baptist, Austin Peay, and NW Missouri.

FIGLET'S FINDS

Indulge in 'Think Pink,' the game of thinkers

by ruth figi

It's near the end of the semester, and you say your brain refuses to absorb any more facts?

Give that gray matter a vacation! Join Rudy Cerullo and Gary Klingsporn in playing the "Thinky Pinky" game.

Here's how you play, as told by ORU Think-Pink champion himself, Gary Klingsporn.

"Give a definition to your friend and then give him the clue of Thinky Pinky. That means his answer must be rhyming words with two syllables each. For example, an out-of-sight dope addict would be a funkier junkie. A "Think Pink" example is a Papal Tranquilizer. Answer? A Pope Dope!

Here's more:

A Rod Laver threat? A tennis menace. An iridescent peasant? A neon peon! A sanitation pipe lover? A sewer wooer!

Gary first heard about Thinky-Pinky on the Johnny Carson show. "After all we've been hearing at ORU about maximum happiness in marriage, I recommend definitions and answers that make sense for maximum enjoyment of the Thinky-Pinky game," Gary advised.

Gary also says a toll-free number may be called to hear a recording of Thinky-Pinky Pollack jokes. "Just dial 1-800-QU 5-1449," Gary says.

So hang loose, everybody. Enjoy the month of April, and don't let finals get the best of you. Play Thinky-Pinky, the thinking man's game. After all, they don't call us the "Harvard of the South" for nothing!

Sharon Perry found a button and walked into the Susie Vinson desk to chalk up one good deed for the day. "Somebody lost a button," she told the lady at the desk.

"It looks just like the buttons on your coat!" the lady told her. Sharon looked down and sure enough, it was one of hers. "Finders keepers," eh Sharon?

Joyce Cutbirth reports a blind-date dilemma. "I called this wrong number, and he had a neat voice, so we just kept talking," she said. Joyce finally agreed to meet him in the Women's High Rise lobby.

"Are you Carl?" she asked one waiting man.

"Yes," he answered.

"Well, I'm Joyce!" she announced brightly.

"So what?" he asked. Wrong Carl.

Thanks for reading Figlet's Finds this year. But before I sign off, here are two Figlet's Believe-it-or-Not's for the week. If you are a graduating senior or are transferring next year, be sure to take in the Prayer Tower mural. The deep voice you hear in the background is none other than "Tony the Tiger."

And, the average male has 13,000 whiskers with 390 per square inch on the cheek and 580 per square inch on the chin. No wonder guys fall asleep in class after working on all that each morning!

TITAN TALK

Ash reveals plans

by roy hess

Intramurals is a growing program on the ORU campus. Students may question their worthwhileness, but most who have participated in them were glad they did.

Intramural director Mike Ash has worked diligently on the program and has made plans to improve Intramurals for next semester. Some of the improvements planned are better facilities, better equipment, better officiating, better scheduling, better communication, and more student involvement.

Ash stated, "We are hoping to get the girls on more of the same programs that the men are on. We will be adding weightlifting to the program, and we are hoping to play TU in more sports than just basketball and football. Possibly we may compete with them in softball, table tennis, track, and swimming. The program has a number of good aspects, and also has some bad ones too, but we are trying to improve those."

Athletic chairmen for each wing will be chosen by application this semester for next semester. This will enable the wings to get organized and to begin competition sooner. Officials will be chosen in the same manner.

Just what do you gain by participating in Intramurals? A wing can become more united by forming a team. A person can witness to others by how he or she conducts himself while playing. A person can let off the steam that may normally be taken out on a roommate. Intramurals are also a convenient way of earning aerobics points.

To someone who has never participated in Intramurals, they may seem foolish. But to a person who has played sports in high school, they can be very necessary. If a person enjoys sports but is not good enough to play on a college team, should he give up his desire to still participate?

Some have not played sports in high school and might be self-conscious about their ability. To this type of person Intramurals can offer an excellent way of broadening his or her personality and experience of life. Next time you are asked to play in Intramurals, don't make excuses, go ahead and play. You may enjoy it.

ORU said goodbye to basketball star Richard Fuqua by way of the Most Valuable Player award, the Helmas Foundation Award, the Associated Press All-American Award, and appointing him to the ORU Hall of Fame. Senior Greg Davis, talented baseball and basketball player, received the coveted President's Cup for the senior who combines the whole-man concept with his athletic ability.

Titan errors give TU season series edge, 3-2

The Golden Hurricane of Tulsa received a pleasant post-Easter gift from the ORU Titans last Monday: the city collegiate baseball championship by virtue of a 3-0 whitewash at Titan Field.

The "present" was provided by the ORU infield which committed four errors at the most inopportune times, and starting pitcher Larry Tolbert who was unable to find the strike zone in the early going. The Titan bats were also unable to come through in clutch situations as they left 10 runners stranded.

Tulsa went ahead, 1-0, in the third without the aid of a single hit. Four bases on balls did the trick and also finished Tolbert. Dave Roof came to the rescue and ended the rally, but the nightmare had just begun for ORU.

A throwing error by third baseman Jerry Triska started a TU surge in the fifth. A walk and a mishandled bunt loaded the bases, then Rich Rogers poked a single to right for a 2-0 lead. It appeared Mark Reinke's fly to center on the next pitch would pad the edge, but Greg Davis drilled a strike to catcher George Hughes to double-up All-American Jerry Tabb and end the rally.

In the sixth, the Hurricane took advantage of errors by Triska and Floyd Bowen to make it 3-0. With runners at first and second, Bowen botched a grounder to load the bases, then Triska was charged with an error while trying to make a difficult play to his right.

Meanwhile, the Titans were giving TU starter Rick Ritschel problems, but the Hurricane ace always came up with the big pitch. ORU's best chance came in the sixth as they put runners on second and third only to have Rich Rozek pop out and Jimmy Lee fan.

After Ritschel tired in the seventh, Ron Wrona came on to stifle the Titans the rest of the way. Wrona pitched out of a seventh-inning jam after Steve Bowling's miscue in centerfield had opened the door for ORU.

The victory gave Tulsa the mythical city championship, three games to two, and it was its eighth in a row. TU stands at 26-3 for the season while the Titans are 17-5.

Earlier in the week, Larry Tolbert and Dave Roof combined for a two-hitter to give ORU a split with Arkansas, 2-0. The Razorbacks won the opener, 5-4, despite a two-run homer by shortstop Tommy Thompson.

Golfers fall in tournaments

by roy hess

Coach Peace divided the golf team into two squads for two different tournaments over the Easter holiday. The 'A' squad placed fifth in the Great Plains Invitational at Wichita, Kansas, and the 'B' squad placed second in the Heart of America Classic in Warrensburg, Missouri.

OSU won the Great Plains Tournament with a score of 908 followed by OU with 911, Nebraska with 924, Wichita State with 928, and ORU with 934. Seven teams participated in the April 21 meet. Mark Witt of OU took first individually with 220, followed by Ben Behensky of Nebraska with 221, and Jim Zimmerman of OU with 223.

Dave Barr of ORU finished sixth individually with 226. Other scores of the team were: Gary Lee 236, Robert Laing 240, Tom Graber 247, and Steve Goering 242.

'B' squad places second

The 'B' squad missed winning first place at the Heart of America Classic by 7 strokes. TU won the meet with a score of 909, followed by ORU with 916, and Central Missouri took third with 924. A.G. Kroger of Lincoln, Missouri, captured first place individually with 141, followed by Mario Vitale of TU with 144, and Ron Streck of TU with 147.

The individual team scores of the Titans were: Jim Fowler 149, Dave Donaldson 149, Mark Adkisson 152, Mike Webb 153, Jim Hall 155, and Tommy Tucker 158.

Golf coach wins first

ORU's assistant golf coach Ted Gellert edged Jim Unruh of TU by one stroke to take first place in the 9-hole coaches' division of the meet.

Coach Peace was pleased with the second team's performance at Warrensburg. Concerning the first team's performance, he said, "I think this was probably one of our poorest showings this year."

Secretaries feted

"Better Secretaries Mean Better Business" is the theme for the 22nd annual Secretaries' Week being observed this week, April 22-28.

The 47 ORU secretaries were honored Tuesday morning at a tea hosted by Mrs. Connie Fritzler's three short hand classes. Susie Romine was in charge of the tea held in the Fireside Room.

From the makers of the real thing

by J. Paul Austin

(Graduated from Harvard Law School and admitted to the New York bar in 1940, J. Paul Austin began his rise in the Coca-Cola Company. Headquartered in Atlanta, Ga., Mr. Austin is also a director of the Morgan Guarantee Trust Company and the General Electric Company.)

For too long now, it has been evident that business and youth have been singing diverse lyrics from the songbook. It is high time harmony replaced the decibels of discord before civilization is deafened beyond reconciliation.

Speaking as a businessman, let me say that this statement is in no way intended to convince the rebellious child to conform, or to urge upon you that business is an exercise of man's nobler faculties, which you should follow as a career. Nor is my statement intended to prelude a volley of rebuttal to recriminations about the corporate way of life.

I pose this question to both of these important segments of America: neither of us can exist without the other. Is it not possible that we are all losing our perspective?

Young people, tuned in on the social betterment note, damn business as motivated entirely by profit. If the two of us follow that academic logic and seek out the wisdom of Noah Webster, in his words, "profit" is defined as "gain." In our effort toward mutual understanding, can we not begin on this first note harmoniously by agreeing that youth, business, in fact every human segment and endeavor are motivated by some form of gain whether it be money, accomplishment, fame, or job satisfaction?

Some businessmen are acutely aware that youth wants us to listen. It may surprise you, but we hear you. We're not turning you off—as a gray, faceless, demanding mass. Instead, we hear you as viable individuals whose energy, drive, and vitalities are necessary to man's survival.

But is youth of the 70's up to listening? Can you, for instance, accept the challenge of discovering businessmen to be other than corporate plunderers and deceiving advertisers, plotting a deadly course to promotion through an inflexible system of seniority?

It is up to business to convince youth that there is room in our midst for the challenge and inquiry which youth offers. More important, the challenge lies not so much in obtaining people with these qualities but in sustaining these qualities within people by enabling them to make real contributions.

This is the job that lies before us. Our older people have the benefit of judgment and experience. They know what will work in business. We look to our young people to help us understand what will work in today's world.

Alma Golder's life's work is acting. An accomplished actress, Alma can be remembered as the lion in "Androcles and the Lion" and the mother in "You Can't Take It With You." Each role she portrays is a part of herself she is sharing with us.

The Golder years with the lady of drama

by mick mccabe

What's so different about Alma Golder?

Well, she's Alma Golder and she's from Muncy Valley, Pennsylvania—that's different.

I had to wait one whole semester to meet an Alma Golder. I was not disappointed.

Zelda and I were having a quiet meal in the farthest reaches of the South Pie, when an upper-class conspirator brought a stranger to our table. One hour later, I was crying from laughing at her jokes and we were friends for life. I must omit the details, but suffice it to say that I am just a bit biased in her favor.

Elmer Golder?

Other people's first memories include:

"What did you say her name was? Elmer Golder?"

"...all I remember was her coming over to our table with a cup of coffee after visiting every other table in the cafeteria. And half a minute later she was zooming off on a motorcycle as the tooth fairy."

And: "She's the only person that I know who while pantomiming a person getting a kernel of popcorn out of her mouth can explain to me how she almost met Lauren Bacall, Carol Channing, and everyone who was anyone in the New York 1969 spring season."

I can remember working with her for the first time. Armed with a hard hat, a work shirt, and a "friend" button, she was stage manager for this year's production of "Cinderella." Backstage she is mercilessly professional, but offstage, all heart.

I didn't want to act in "Androcles and the Lion," but I took part just to be on stage with Alma. To be on stage with Alma turned out to be looking on in awe as she caught fire in front of her audience. Acting is her life's work—and she is to acting as Bob Stamps is to communion.

"Miss Proverbs" centerfold

What else is different about Alma Golder? Well, whom else do you know on campus who is in the Bible?

Were you to check between Psalms and Proverbs in the New Living Bible, The Way, you would see Alma Golder making herself up as a fox and representing the "whole woman" concept. She refers to herself as the "Miss Proverbs" centerfold.

And when you see the picture of Alma, be sure to read the paragraph opposite; it is most highly applicable to the lady.

I hate writing this article. How could I tell anyone just what one thing I find about anyone as special to me as Alma Golder. She is an accomplished actress. She is the lion from "Androcles and the Lion" and the mother from "You Can't Take It With You." Each role relates to a part of her—as she relates totally to each part. She is a complex being.

And she is my friend.
